

VANDALISM IS A problem in many Northwest suburbs, as this picture of graffiti along the walls of a Ill. Rte. 53 underpass north of Palatine Road shows. But ordinances passed in Cook County and area communities to curb destruction by making parents responsible for their children's criminal acts have come under fire in Illinois and across the nation. Corruption free

Village hailed as 'model of puritanical propriety'

by BILL HILL

Arlington Heights is hailed as "a model of puritanical propriety" in a study of governmental corruption conducted by a professor from the University of Illinois, Chicago Circle campus.

"Unlike many of its neighboring suburbs, Arlington Heights has made (the) transition from farm town to upper middle-class suburb with a total absence of corruption," says John A. Gardiner in a report called "Propriety in Prairieville."

Gardiner has studied Arlington Heights and several other Chicago suburbs for the Stanford Research Institute, which will submit a final report to the federal government next November, indicating what municipalities can do to prevent corruption.

ABOUT 600 municipalities nationwide, where instances of corruption have been noted, have been reviewed by Stanford researchers, Gardiner said, with about 20 being studied in-depth.

The close review of Arlington Heights was made because of praise from federal prosecutors, Gardiner said.

"We looked at land development in Cook County for five years. We got contractors to tell us about little bribes and big payoffs all over the county. But we never heard a thing about Arlington Heights — they all swear the town is completely clean," one prosecutor is quoted as saying in the report.

Interviews with Arlington Heights village employes and residents and observations of local regulatory practices consistently reinforced the concluson that official integrity is a widespread norm in Arlington Heights, Gardiner's report states.

"It was not surprising that no payoffs were observed; it was unusual, however, to find an almost total absence of charges of even minor infractions, even from political enemies of those in office," according to the report.

The importance of studying Arlington Heights, Gardiner says, is to see what has been done to resist the corruption so widespead during the construction boom following World War II. Gardiner points out several possible factors:

- An active community. "Citizens of Arlington Heights are active participants in local affairs. Their active scrutiny would tend to make potential corruptees nervous."
- High salaries for village staff. "With the kind of salaries those guys pull down, why would they want to mess with bribe money."
- The leadership of Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson. "His supporters regard him as firm, his detractors feel he is unresponsive to citizen requests; everyone agrees that he is absolutely honest and firmly in command of the village government."
- A proud and profesional staff. "It may well be that much of the credit for the absence of corruption should go to people who take pride in doing their jobs professionally and well."
- "Realistic" zoning and planning procedures. "While it can be (and has been) argued that Arlington Heights' codes make construction expensive,

Trustees give pat on the back to village staff

A resolution saluting past village presidents, trustees and administrative staff members will be introduced by Trustees Robert Miller and August Bettman at the village board's Monday meeting in recognition of the study by Prof. John Gardiner of the University of Illinois, Chicago Circle.

"People can always take pot shots at somebody or make negative comments, but you have to look at things on the whole and ask if they're doing a good job. I think this (study) shows we're doing a better than good job," Miller said.

Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson deserves special praise, Miller said.

"Rudy Hanson should get a lot of credit and so should the rest of the community, citizens included, for their professionalism. This resolution is all we can do to say thanks to the people who spent countless hours putting everything together," he said.

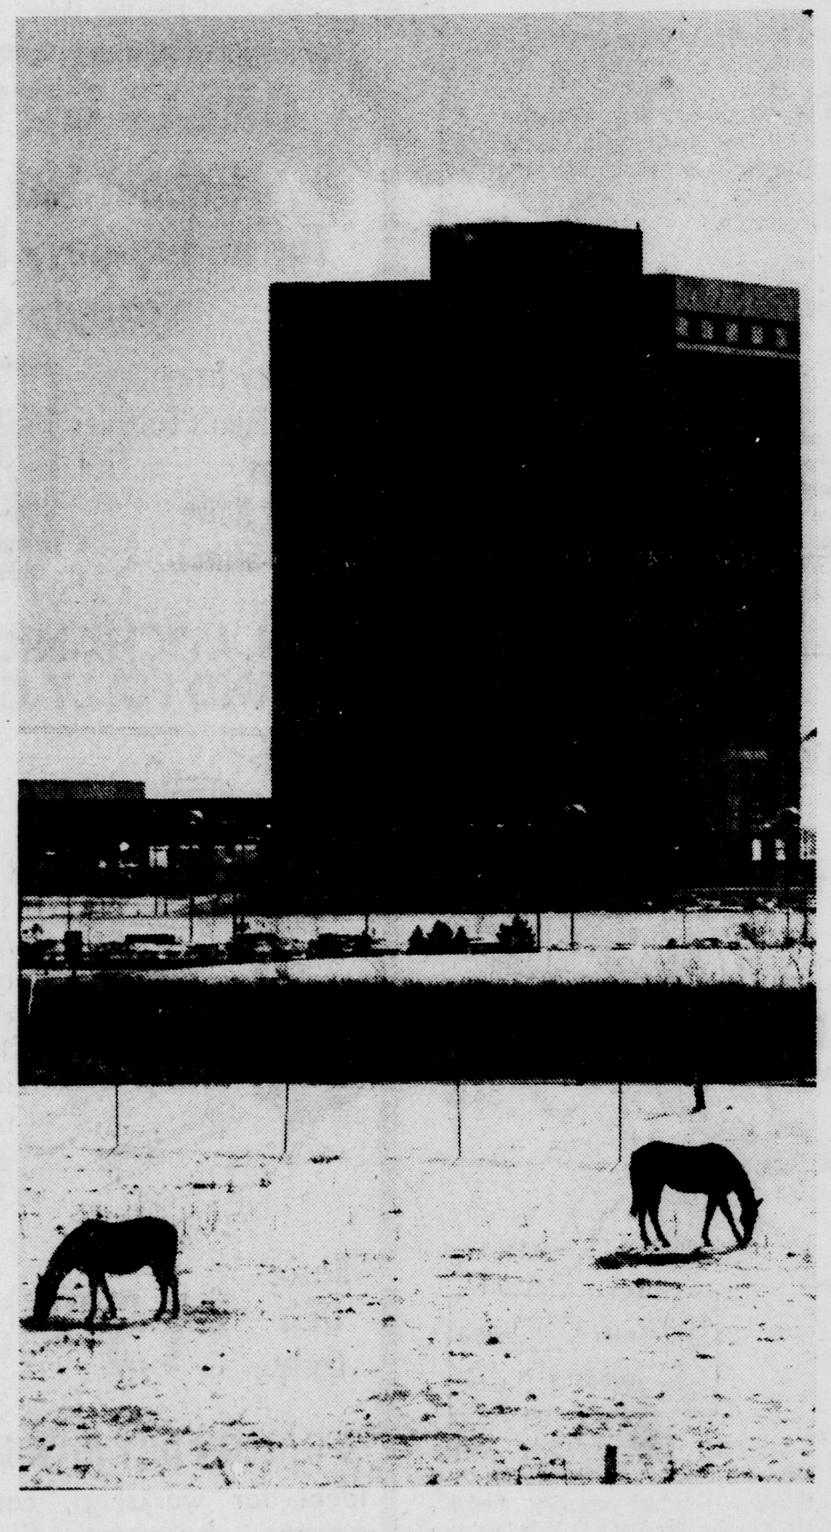

HANSON AND Martin Munsen, village building director, said there have been only a few instances where payoffs were offered to village employes.

"Our people have been indoctrinated successfully to understand that they are to accept nothing. You only have to thwart it once and word gets around," Hanson said.

"Our inspectors have had opportunities where they have been offered certain things to overlook certain things. But it's been very infrequent. The word gets around," Munsen said.

THIS IDYLLIC SCENE in the Northwest suburbs will receive a blessing of between one and two more inches of snow by noon today, weathermen predict, with temperatures below freezing until Saturday, when, believe it or not, warm weather and rain are forecast.

It's work as usual for paramedics

by DANN GIRE

Area paramedic units based at Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights today are marking the fourth anniversary of the service, started Dec. 1, 1972.

Despite the anniversary, most local fire departments are carrying on as usual without official recognition of the event.

"Oh, we'll probably start the day off washing the ambulances like always," a Des Plaines paramedic said Tuesday. "I don't even think most paramedics are aware of it (the anniversary)."

"I JUST HOPE it's quiet," Buffalo Grove Fire Chief Wayne Winter says.

Throughout the four years the paramedics have been rushing to the scene of calamities, the personnel have gotten more experienced, the service more efficient, and the equipment more sophisticated, says Mount Prospect Assistant Fire Chief David Gold.

Despite better service today, some residents still are using ambulances as taxis for transporation, say some area paramedics.

"We get a call an ambulance is needed at such and such an address. We think it could be a coronary case, so we're on the scene in minutes," a Des Plaines paramedic says. "When we arrive, we find the guy waiting for us to take him to the hospital where he's scheduled to go in at 3 o'clock."

KEN REEHOFF, Arlington Heights paramedic, says once a village man called complaining of chest pains and difficult breathing. When the unit arrived, Rehoff says, the man was standing at the door, bags packed, with his car in the driveway and his wife in the house.

But paramedics continue to answer all calls, regardless of how insignificant they sound, because "We'd rather come back empty than take a chance on someone's health," Mount Prospect Fire Chief Larry Pairitz says.

Sometimes it's even better to send an ambulance to a nonemergency call, he adds, because if a mother is panicky over her child's minor injury, an auto accident could result on the way to the hospital.

Winter says despite some of the "way-out" calls they get, "there's really no such thing as a nonemergency call."

Winter says although injuries are very simple, "they are true emergencies to the people who call them in. They don't know what to do so they call us for help."

Top intelligence officer

South Korean agent seeks asylum

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Informed Korean sources said Tuesday the second-ranking Korean Central Intelligence Agency officer in the United States has requested U. S. political asylum.

The sources identified the defector as Sang Keun Kim, 43, who is listed officially as a counselor with the South Korean embassy in Washington.

U. S. State Dept. spokesmen declined comment.

Kim is one of 27 persons assigned to the embassy and Los Angeles consulate who was recently identified by a congressional committee as a KCIA agent.

ACCORDING TO Korean sources, Kim was the principal contact man for Tong Sun Park, the Washington-based South Korean businessman who allegedly distributed much of the money and cash involved in reported Korean efforts to influence U. S. congressmen.

Park has left the country, and is reported to have been ordered by the South Korean government to stay out of the United States in order to impede current U. S. investigations of the influence-peddling allegations.

The South Korean government apparently is trying to withdraw witnesses who could establish that the lobbying effort was done with its authority or knowledge.

He had told friends he was supposed to report to Seoul by mid-December.

But the State Dept. office of Protocol, which handles diplomatic accreditation, said Kim has been removed from the diplomatic list.

UNDER U. S. LAW, a request for political asylum is honored if the refugee makes a convincing case that he would be endangered if he were sent back to his home country. State Dept. officials say South Koreans have been granted asylum before.

South Korea meantime, has begun a campaign to suppress and divert investigations into illegal Korean practices in the United States, congressional sources said.

The sources said the campaign has three main objectives:

- To remove from the United States any Korean involved in illegal activities.
- To concentrate public attention on the U. S. stakes in South Korea and raise the possibility that security may be endangered by an overzealous investigation.
- To mount a public campaign to convince Americans that all of the illegal acts were committed without the knowledge and consent of the South Korean government and President Park Chung Hee.

"That argument might wash if you were talking about a democratically elected republic," said Donald Ranard, a former U. S. State Dept. desk officer. "But in the case of South Korea, I'm amazed that anyone would even suggest that the Korean Central Intelligence Agency would act without Park's direct order."

2 ex-state officials get 6-month terms

Two former Illinois Dept. of Labor officials have been sentenced to six months in a work-release program after being convicted of conspiring to extort $2,500 from the Crown Personnel employment agency, 325 W. Prospect Ave., Mount Prospect. Barney J. Grabiec, department director from 1969-72, and Gerald Wall, former superintendent of the private employment agency division, also were fined $5,000 each Tuesday by U.S. District Court Judge Alfred Y. Kirkland. Grabiec, 60, of Downers Grove, and Wall, 37, of Chicago, were convicted after an Oct. 22 jury trial. Both were indicted last year on charges of extorting the money in return for lodging light penalties against Crown Personnel Inc. Crown was charged in 1972 with failing to notify temporary employes in writing that Honeywell Inc., which was seeking help at that time, was on strike. Wall, son of state Rep. John F. Wall, R-Chicago, is a racetrack clerk supervisor.

2 arrested in burglaries

An Arlington Heights nan and a Prospect Heights youth arrested by a Mount Prospect patrolman Monday morning, have reportedly confessed to burglarizing four gasoline stations in Wheeling Township, Mount Prospect and Wheeling. George J. Kman, 22, of 103 Wilshire Ave., was arrested with the 16-year-old at 4:14 a.m. Monday by Mount Prospect patrolman Len Yourg who observed the youth trying to hide something under a front car seat as the squad car passed by. Police recovered several stacks of paper money totaling $1,800 from the seat along with burglary tools. Kman is being held by Cook County authorities on a $5,000 bond from Mount Prospect and a $5,000 bond from Wheeling. The juvenile has been remanded to the custody of his parents. Both offenders have reportedly confessed to burglarizing E-Z-Go gas stations at 705 E. Rand Rd., Mount Prospect; at Elmhurst Road and Jenkins Court in Wheeling; and at two Wheeling Township locations.

A Palatine man accused of burning his wife to death received a continuance in pretrial hearings Tuesday to allow more time for defense attorneys to research their client's psychiatric history. Attorneys for David Rhoads, 409 N. Northwest Hwy., Tuesday sought the continuance and will return Dec. 23 to the Evanston branch of Cook County Circuit Court to continue pretrial hearings. Rhoads is accused of using gasoline July 17 to set his wife, Vicki, 18, on fire in the Palatine home of her parents.

Mikva opposes widening Golf Rd.

U.S. Rep. Abner J. Mikva, D-10th, has asked the Illinois Dept. of Transportation to reconsider its plans to widen Golf Road next year in unincorporated Maine Township from four to six lanes. In a letter to Sigmund Ziejewski, department district engineer, Mikva said he questions the need for a six-lane road running through an established commercial and residential section. Mikva has asked the state to consider an alternative plan suggested by some residents and businesses that calls for resurfacing the existing four lanes and installing turning lanes along the three-mile stretch between Harlem Avenue and the Tri-State Tollway.

Utah OKs execution of Gilmore

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Condemned killer Gary Gilmore Tuesday convinced the Utah Board of Pardons to let him die, setting the stage for his execution by firing squad within a week.

"Thank you, Mr. Latimer," the 35-year-old slayer told Board Chairman George Latimer after he announced the 2-1 decision not to commute or delay imposition of the death penalty.

Gilmore was descried in "good spirits" after the ruling by his lawyer, who said his client was happy about the proceedings and the outcome.

THE BOARD'S two-hour hearing and the announcement of its decision after an hour and 10 minutes of closed door deliberation were broadcast live on radio and television in Utah.

The board listened to Gilmore argue that his sentence for the slaying of a motel clerk last summer was "proper" and that delays in carrying it out were "much ado about nothing."

"I did not request to die," said the condemned man, who sat at the end of a large table flanked by the three board members. "I simply accepted the sentence of the court. That's not a request to die."

GILMORE WAS convicted of first degree murder for the execution-style slaying of Bennie Bushnell, 25, Provo, Utah, during a holdup last summer. He has admitted slaying a young service station attendant the previous night.

In Washington, meantime, lawyers for another man sentenced to die next week — Robert Excel White — asked the U.S. Supreme Court to block his scheduled Dec. 10 execution in the electric chair in Texas. They acted over the condemned man's objections. The American Civil Liberties Union also said it would file a request with the high court to delay Gilmore's execution.

In effect, White and Gilmore are in a race to determine who shall be the first person executed in the United Sttes in more than nine years.

ATTORNEYS AND organizations opposed to the death penalty are fighting the death requests because they believe that, once the moratorium on executions is ended, other states will find it easier to start putting to death the nearly 400 other convicts who want to live.

Gilmore, who wore prison whites with handcuffs on his wrists and shackles on his ankles, appeared gaunt and nervous but spoke calmly and firmly. He had lost 20 pounds during an 11-day hunger strike.

"I'd like to make it clear. I'm not a proponent of capital punishment," he said. "I don't have an opinion one way or another, but I do see the virtue and the logic of the maxim, 'An eye for an eye.'"

THIS IS MY LIFE and my death. I seek nothing from you. I haven't earned anything and I don't deserve anything. I simply accepted the sentence that was given me. I believe the sentence was proper."

The pardons board immediately prepared papers on its decison for transmittal to Fourth District Judge J. Robert Bullock in Provo, who must set a new execution date.

Gilmore's lawyer, Ronald Stanger, and state authorities predicted the execution would be set for next Monday or sooner to avoid possible legal questions over a state law requiring executions within 60 days of sentencing.

Latimer said he and oard member Thomas Harrison voted to allow the execution to go ahead because Utah's death penalty law is constitutional and "no factual issues have been presented to the board that shows any reason for changing the sentence of court."

Board member Harriet Marcus dissented, saying the execution should be delayed until after the Utah Supreme Court rules on the constitutionality of the state's death penalty statute.

Gov. Calvin Ramton, who stayed the execution pending the board's hearing, said he agreed with the ruling. Under state law, the governor cannot take any further action in the case.

Most of the hearing was taken up by opponents of the death penalty who asked the board to delay the execution until after a court ruling on Utah's untested law. The Utah attorney general's office and the Utah County attorney, who prosecuaed Gilmore, appeared to support Gilmore's request to die.

Gunmen surrender to newsmen's pleas

ONE OF TWO gunmen is led away from South Side Chicago residence after surrendering to police. At left is Russ Ewing, TV reporter who was summoned to conduct negotiations.

by United Press International

Two gunmen, surprised by police during a robbery attempt, held three women hostage in an apartment for more than four hours Tuesday and promised "we're gonna kill them or we're gonna kill ourselves." Two newsmen coaxed them into surrendering.

The hostages were released unharmed.

Both gunmen were wounded, neither seriously, during an exchange of gunfire with police who were tipped to the robbery at a South Side currency exchange.

They grabbed two women employes, forced them out a side door, down a gangway and into the building next door where they took refuge in a second-floor apartment.

THE APARTMENT resident, Mrs. Emma Louis Henry, 36, said she hid in a bedroom closet unnoticed the entire time the gunmen were inside. "They didn't know I was there," she said.

The gunmen first told police by telephone that they had seven hostages and demanded they be provided with a getaway car. Police refused to meet their demands. The gunmen then asked to talk to newsmen Russ Ewing of WMAQ Television and Gus Savage, publisher of a community newspaper.

After about two hours of negotiations with the reporters and receiving assurances they would not be injured, the gunmen surrendered.

"I JUST KEPT talking all the time and it worked," Ewing said. "They promised to kill everyody up there and then they . . . well they just started changing their minds.

"They laid all their guns in the middle of the floor and they came down one at a time."

One of the currency exchange employes was identified as Beverly West, but the name of the third hostage was not immediately released. Police first said a baby also was held hostage, but later said that was incorrect.

The gunmen were identified by police as James Shelton, 41, and Rudy Carver, 44, both of Chicago. Shelton suffered a shotgun wound in the shoulder and Carver was shot in the left buttock. Both were hospitalized in satisfactory condition.

POLICE surround building with awnings where gunmen, who failed in a getaway from a currency exchange robbery next door, held three women hostage Tuesday in Chicago.

Ewing, showing obvious emotional strain, answered only a few questions from reporters and left for home following the afternoon-long siege in which scores of policemen encircled the two-story building in 18-degree weather.

POLICE CORDONED off a one-block area, two special operations units were called and police sharpshooters perched n rooftops, wrapped in blankets provided by the Red Cross. Police communicated with the robbers by telephone.

At one point, one of the robbers said in a phone conversation with a newsman: "We're gonna kill them (the hostages) or we're gonna kill ourselves.

"We don't want to hurt anybody. We're fighting for survival. We know they're gonna try to kill us. If you're as powerful as you think you are, pull these policemen away from here and we'll take the hostages down and we'll take our chances in the streets.

"In other words, we're gonna kill them or we're gonna kill ourselves. Life really don't mean anything to us. So we're gonna take our own lives before we surrender."

Capt. Charles Hopp of the department's special operations group, said the episode apparently started when "a man walked into the currency exchange and stuck a gun to a woman's head and demanded money" at about 1 p.m.

Attorney calls Yoshimura reluctant Hearst roommate

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI) — An attorney for Wendy Yoshimura, Patricia Hearst's roommate at the time of their arrests, said Tuesday his client helped Miss Hearst because of warm compassion — but with great reluctance.

Miss Yoshimura, 33, is on trial on four charges of conspiracy and possession of weapons and explosives found March 31, 1972, in a Berkeley garage she rented.

Her attorney, James Larson, said she fled a few days after the garage contents were seized, fearing she would not receive justice. Willie Brandt, a student with whom she had been living and two others, pleaded guilty in 1972 and were imprisoned.

Larson said Miss Hearst and fugitives William and Emily Harris met Miss Yoshimura in the summer of 1974. As a fugitive herself, he said, Miss Yoshimura felt obligated to help the trio, but agreed to do so reluctantly.

AT THE TIME, Larson said, Miss Hearst was "withdrawn, pale and had difficulty taking care of herself."

For the next year, Miss Yoshimura lived on and off with Miss Hearst in their common efforts to avoid capture but not "as part of some grand conspiracy."

Miss Hearst is free on bail pending an appeal of her conviction on federal bank robbery charges and her trial in Los Angeles on a variety of state charges next year.

The defense conceded that Miss Yoshimura rented the garage. Larson said there was "a shocking array of weapons and explosives" but that Miss Yoshimura was not guilty of their possession.

He said the arsenal apparently was assembled by Brandt and two other antiwar activists.

THE PROSECUTION, he said, will be unable to prove that Miss Yoshimura was part of a conspiracy involving the arsenal.

The prosecution's opening statement disclosed that numerous pictures and written materials were found in the garage pointing to former Defense Sec. Robert McNamara as a possible target. Larsen said there was no evidence that Miss Yoshimura had touched these materials.

Miss Yoshimura, a Japanese-American, was born in a United States internment camp in 1943.

Larson said his client, grateful to persons who comforted her as a fugitive, would not name anybody uninvolved in the main issue of the case, possession of the arsenal. To do so, Miss Yoshimura believes, would be physically dangerous and morally indefensible.

New Jersey ruling raises doubts

Vandal laws' legality questioned

by NANCY GOTLER

The legality of vandalism laws holding parents responsible for their children's criminal acts is being questioned in Illinois and across the country.

The ordinances, which have been passed in Cook County and many area communities, assess a range of fines and restitution payments to parents of convicted juvenile vandals.

A similar Trenton, N.J., city law recently was ruled unconstitutional by the Appellate Division of the New Jersey Superior Court, raising doubts among some area attorneys and officials about how their laws would fare in court.

ANTIVANDALISM ordinances are on the books in Arlington Heights, Buffalo Grove, Des Plaines, Elk Grove Village, Mount Prospect, Palatine and Schaumburg.

The penalties range from a possible charge of parental negligence in Elk Grove Village to mandatory medical or psychiatric treatment for repeat offenders convicted under the Cook Ciunty vandalism ordinance.

The Trenton law was struck down by the appellate court because the statute allowed what Trenton attorney Edwin Schmierer called vicarious liability.

"The law held someone else responsible for what another person does," Schmierer said. "The City of Trenton is appealing the case to the state Supreme Court on the grounds that parents are directly responsible by their negligence."

SOME AREA attorneys, like Wheeling Village Atty. John Burke, agree with the New Jersey Appellate Court decision.

"These laws are imposing liability upon a person who has no knowledge that the criminal act is being done," he said. "If a person isn't aware of a crime how can he be guilty of it? It's an after-the-act-type penalty."

On Burke's recommendaton that a vandalism ordinance could be ruled unconstitutional, Wheeling village trustees decided not to pass one.

Mount Prospect Mayor Robert D. Teichert agreed with Burke and opposed an ordinance holding parents financially responsible for their children's destructive acts.

THE VILLAGE board, however, passed a law billing parents for damages but not assessing a fine.

"I still think the whole thrust of it (a vandalism ordinance) is wrong and ultimately can be held as wrong," Teichert said. "Nobody would like to be responsible for somebody else's actions and I think in the end all vandalism ordinances will be knocked out. Then we can get back to worrying about who we should be worrying about — the culprit himself."

If the New Jersey Supreme Court upholds the unconstitutinal ruling, Illinois communities should review their vandalism laws, Teichert said.

Hoffman Estates Village Pres. Virginia M. Hayter also doubted the legality of vandalism laws.

HOFFMAN ESTATES officials are deliberating on vandalism legislation, she said, and the New Jersey court decision will "influence" the local law.

"If nothing else, the court action supports those who've been issuing cautions about the legal acceptability of parental responsibility laws," Mrs. Hayter said.

"Attorneys who've been very cautious about this are probably reading this morning's paper and saying, "I told you so,' " she said.

Officials in Rolling Meadows join those who are concerned about the legality of vandalism laws.

THE CITY DOES not have such a law, but the license committee has been reviewing the possibility of passing one for several months.

City Atty. Donald Rose maintains, however, that if one is adopted it "would not be valid or enforceable."

"We as a municipality have no authority to enforce such an ordinance and I've told the council so," Rose said. "Traditionally parents are not liable for torts of their children unless those acts are so repetitious that it can be determined that the parents are negligent. Then they can be charged with negligence but would still not be held financially liable for the damage."

Some officials said they think vandalism ordinances are defensible in court.

KENT YOWALL, partner to Palatine Village Atty. Brad Glass, said the Palatine ordiance would probably be upheld and that he would not be surprised if a test case was brought to court in Illinois.

Jack M. Siegel, village attorney for Schaumburg and Arlington Heights, said ordinances in those communties probably would withstand a court test, but he was not as sure about Cook County's law.

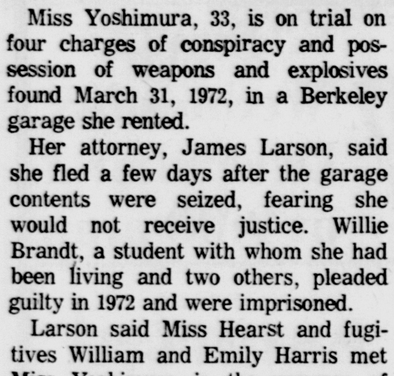

"I'm concerned about this mandatory business," he said. "When they attempt by ordinance to get into areas where the court is normally allowed to exercise discretion, then serious con stitutional questions are brought up."

Schaumburg Pres. Raymond Kessell said it was "short sighted" of the New Jersey Appellate Court to strike down the vandalism law.

But he agreed with the others interviewed about one point.

"You can't guess what the courts will do," he said.

Illinois briefs

REP. AARON JAFFE, D-Skokie, co-sponsor of legislation raising lawmakers' annual pay, tells reporters that the bill he introduced Tuesday would hike the salary from $20,000 to $27,500 and increase the daily expense allowance from $36 to $44. The three-bill package printed for introduction in the House would also raise the salaries of the governor, from $50,000 to $85,000; lieutenant governor, from $37,500 to 45,000; and attorney general, from $42,500 to $60,000. Supreme Court justices would be paid $55,000 and circuit court judges $52,000.

House to debate death penalty bills

The Illinois House voted Tuesday to let the entire membership debate two death penalty bills that earlier failed to get out of a House committee. The bills, sponsored by Reps. Roman Kosinski, D-Chicago, and Romie Palmer, R-Blue Island, were discharged from the House Judiciary Committee by lopsided votes and advanced to the second reading or amendment stage. The bills would reinstate the death penalty in Illinois in the wake of recent U.S. Supreme Court findings that laws in Georgia, Florida and Texas are valid. There are some differences between the measures but both would impose death for certain crimes.

Illinois has been without a death penalty since 1975. The Illinois Supreme Court last year invalidated a 1973 law on technicalities. The old Illinois death penalty was victim of a U.S. Supreme Court ruling that death penalty laws that operated arbitrarily were unconstitutional. In June, however, the U. S. Supreme Court ruled death penalties in several states are specific enough to make them constitutional. The two new Illinois bills are modeled after laws in those states.

Senate OKs higher education aid

The Illinois Senate voted Tuesday to restore nearly $10 million in vetoed money for higher education salary hikes, but universities and colleges have promised to spend only about $5.76 million of that money if the House also puts it back. The money represents restoration to 4.5 per cent a salary increase the legislature passed for fiscal year 1977 but which Gov. Daniel Walker cut to 2.5 per cent. Walker said the 4.5 per cent figure made the higher education budget more than the state can afford.

Despite warnings from some members that passage of salary hikes would "open the floodgates" for other veto overrides, senators narrowly voted to give academic and nonacademic employes at the state's public universities the 2 per cent pay boost. Sen David Shapiro, R-Amboy, sponsor of the motions to restore pay hikes to employes at universities in the Board of Regents system, said the restorations will face a "rougher time" in the House, where they must be approved before Walker's vetoes can be overridden. However, the bills will remain in the Senate until Thursday due to a parliamentary tangle.

At the same time the Senate was acting on the pay boosts, Comptroller George Lindberg was urging the legislature not to override Walker's spending vetoes. Walker and Governor-elect James Thompson already have urged the legislature to leave Walker's spending vetoes alone. Lindberg said in his monthly fiscal report the state's financial outlook "remains in delicate balance," because revenue projections are not as optimistic as they once were. He said added spending could "tip the fiscal scales out of balance."

Mikva confident he'll stay winner

Rep. Abner Mikva, D-Ill., said Tuesday he is "not overly worried" he will lose his 10th District seat in a discovery recount asked by his defeated opponent in the Nov. 2 elections, former Rep. Samuel Young. Mikva was declared winner of the race with a plurality of 201 votes out of more than 213,000 cast. Young, a Republican, Tuesday said he hopes a recount in 132 of 530 precincts will reverse the result. "At least we hope we'll find 201 votes," he said.

But Mikva said, "I'm not overly worried. There is nothing he can do in the state of Illinois. The result is official. The only recourse he has, in case he finds more votes than I have, is to go to the House of Representatives. "And I have reason to believe the first thing they will ask for is the counting of those 2,600 absentee ballots, which I believe will only increase my plurality," Mikva said. "I would obviously have been happier if I had won by 100,000 votes, but I'm not worried."

Slayer gets 300 years in jail

Describing him as a "cancer on society" deserving the death penalty, Cook County Circuit Court Judge James E. Bailey Tuesday sentenced Richard Baske, 25, to serve 100 to 300 years in prison for stabbing an 84-year-old woman to death in 1974. Baske was convicted by the criminal court jury Oct. 13 of slaying Mrs. Loretta Hoppe on March 23, 1974, in her home in the Marquette Park area and later returning to the house to burn it. Mrs. Hoppe suffered 31 stab wounds.

Judge Bailey described the slaying as "vicious" and said he would have sentenced Baske to death if the death penalty had been available to him.

Assessment cut could save home

by KURT BAER
A news analysis

If you live in a new home, added on to an older home recently or own a new condominium apartment, you stand the best chance of benefitting from the recent change in Cook County assessment practices, experts agree.

The reason is existing assessment on new homes is apt to be at, or very near 22 per cent of market value. The cut to 17 per cent approved by the Cook County Board Monday should mean a lower assessment or at least a smaller increase than otherwise would be encountered because of higher market values.

But the assessment on most older homes in the Northwest suburbs currently is about 13 to 15 per cent of market value. For these homeowners, the "reduction" from the legal maximum of 22 per cent to 17 per cent amounts to a "savings" on paper only.

"The vast majority of assessments on homes are substantially under 17 per cent right now," says Wheeling Township Assessor Marshall Theroux. "Surveys have shown the average is about 12 to 13 per cent."

PALATINE TOWNSHIP Assessor Bernie Pedersen agrees. "I don't think they ever reached the 22 per cent of market value level in Palatine except on new homes or homes that were reassessed within the past couple of years because of a room addition," he says.

Wheeling and Palatine townships will be reassessed this year. Homeowners and condominium apartment owners can expect that their assessment will be at or near 17 per cent of market value, the new legal limit.

However, homeowners in townships not being reassessed can appeal their assessments if they can show that the 17 per cent formula would save them money.

The process is reasonably simple. Homeowners should figure 17 per cent of the current fair market value of their home and then compare the figure with the assessment on their last tax bill.

If using the 17 per cent figure results in a significantly lower assessment, homeowners can file an objection with the county's assessment appeals board in Chicago, says Dennis Dunne, spokesman for Cook County Assessor Thomas M. Tully.

"THE DIFFERENCE should be something substantial, not just the difference between 17 per cent and 17.5 per cent," Dunne says. "We don't anticipate too many people will be filing objections."

Residents of Maine Township already have received or soon will get notice of their 1976 assessment, Dunne said. They have from Dec. 1 to 20 to file objections with the appeals board. Dates have not been set for objections from other townships.

Property owners have 20 days from the time the assessment notices are mailed to file an objection.

In Palatine and Wheeling townships where the property is being reassessed, notices will be mailed from mid-December through mid-January, Dunne says.

New homeowners, persons whose homes were reassessed recently because of an addition, and new condominium apartment owners should check to make sure they would not benefit by applying for the 17 per cent assessment.

DUNNE SAYS persons filing objections will have to show some evidence that the fair market value on which they have figured a 17 per cent assessment is, in fact, "fair."

That, says Theroux, is usually not much of a problem.

"Folks tend to know pretty well what their property is worth," Theroux says. "They know, for example, that the house down the street just sold for $68,000 when they only paid $41,000."

Pedersen says he hopes the application of the 17 per cent assessment will eliminate inequities in some assessments in Palatine.

"Of all the complaints we handle, uniformity. One guy at the end of the street is being assessed at 20 per cent while another guy in the middle of the most of them deal with the lack of block is at 13 per cent and the only difference is that one guy's house was built two years later than the other's," he says.

Differences exist because the assessor started using new guidelines for assessments in 1973. As a result, homes built in the past three years have assessments much closer to the old 22 per cent maximum, while the same model home built before 1973 may have an assessment of only 10-15 per cent.

ALL THAT SHOULD change as the county goes about reassessing residential property at a uniform 17 per cent. But it takes four years to reassess all of the townships in Cook County.

Tully has repeated several times the change in assessment levels does not mean a real estate tax cut for home and condominium apartment owners. What it does is soften the double-barreled blow that will come from inflated market values and a higher level of assessment.

But for new home buyers, or persons whose home was reassessed because of a building addition, the reduction in assessment level may bring some real tax relief.

Calculate to see if you benefit

Here is how to estimate whether the new 17 per cent assessment level approved by the Cook County Board this week can lower the assessment on your home or apartment condominium.

First, arrive at the fair market value of your home. An appraisal, sale price of another similar home in the neighborhood or even an educated guess is a place to start.

Second, calculate a 17 per cent assessment by multiplying the fair market value by .17.

Third, compare the results of your calculation with the assessment on your last tax bill, or assessment notice. If the assessment is significantly lower using the 17 per cent figure, you can file a notice with the county assessment appeal board asking that your assessment be changed.

If you live in Wheeling or Palatine townships, the 17 per cent reassessment will be computed for you by the Cook County assessor. Notice of the new assessment should arrive in the mail between mid-December and mid-January.

Local leaders say it's one way the elephant can trumpet again

GOP survival riding on salable conservatism

by PAUL GORES

The Republican Party must change its image by offering "conservative solutions to liberal problems," such as health care and unemployment, if the party is to gain support nationwide, most Northwest suburban GOP officials say.

Their concerns and solutions are similar to those expressed Monday at a conference of 12 Republican governors who met in Washington to discuss their party's waning role in government.

But many area politicians countered a statement made during the conference that the GOP is nearly doomed to a minority role in government.

"WE HAVE TO DO a better job of explaining the traditional Republican values and why they're important," said Bernard Pedersen, Palatine Township Republican committeeman.

"We have to appeal to the ethnic groups, Catholics and the hard-hat type of guys," Pedersen said. "They're the ones who are most forgotten in certain parts of the country."

Rep. Donald L. Totten, R-Hoffman Estates, said many GOP officials and candidates are "unable to articulate well the traditional principles the party stands for." Totten, the Schaumburg Township Republican committeeman, said the principles of more economic freedom, decentralization of power, less meddling and more state and local government control are what the GOP stands for.

"It's difficult to get the economic part across when the other party is offering free lunch," Totten said.

MANY GOP OFFICIALS and representatives said it is not necessary for the party to move to the middle or left politically in order to gain support.

Donald Totten

Kenneth Retzke

Bernard Pedersen

State Sen. David Regner, R-Mount Prospect, said he disagreed with comments that the GOP is becoming more conservative. He said a move either way on the political spectrum might be damaging.

"Every time a political party moves one way or the other it loses part of its base of support," Regner said.

"I think all this discussion of the Republican Party becoming a minority party is erroneous," Palatine Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones said.

"The party is going to have to articulate conservative solutions to liberal problems," Jones said. "We have to have someone more articulate than Nixon or Ford to explain that there are conservative solutions to problems."

FOR EXAMPLE, JONES said, Congress could offer a tax break to insurance companies as an incentive to finance national health care. He said it would be the "free-enterprise solution" to the health-care problem, instead of the tax-supported health care insurance proposed by Democrats.

Frend H. Yonkers, Wheeling Township Republican committeeman, said a revival of the GOP involves "destroying the myths that it's (the GOP) the party of big business as opposed to the party of the people."

Yonkers said a rebuilding of the Republican Party will have to start at the local level.

"We've got to bring in a greater number of young people," Arlington Heights Village Pres. James T. Ryan said. "We've got to develop some candidates with 'pizzazz' and then motivate people."

PALATINE VILLAGE TRUSTEE Bryan P. Coughlin said the GOP needs more leaders who are able to explain party principles.

"The Republican Party has done a miserable job of selling what it really stands for — with a few exceptions like Phil Crane," Coughlin said.

Crane, the 12th District congressman, U. S. Sec. of Defense Donald Rumsfeld, Gov.-elect James Thompson and Ronald Reagan were mentioned frequently by area GOP officials as men who could offer strong national leadership.

Ethel Kolerus, Wheeling Township Supervisor, said the Republican Party must shed its negative image.

"We've got to be able to articulate why we oppose some programs," she said. "We have to be able to project that we are open, but we can't get that message across."

ROLLING MEADOWS Ald. Kenneth Retzke said it is encouraging that many American voters consider themselves politically independent.

"I don't think our party is doomed, but I agree we can afford to expand our outlook by appealing to a greater segment of the population," Retzke said.

John G. Woods, former Arlington Heights village president and GOP campaign manager, said the future of the party is not "one of unrelieved gloom."

"There are many people whose basic ideals are Republican in nature, but they hesitate to be known as Republicans," Woods said.

Carl Hansen, chairman of the Suburban Republican Organization of Cook County, said "long-term advertising of the product" — the Republican Party — and a positive emphasis will gain the party support nationally.

"I think, quite frankly," Hansen said, "it's not a problem susceptible to a quick solution."

Ex-area man indicted in Teamster payoff scheme

by TONI GINNETTI

A former Schaumburg man who for two years administered the multi-million dollar pension fund of the Teamsters' Union was indicted Tuesday by a U.S. Grand Jury for allegedly taking a kickback from a California cemetery firm to ensure a loan for the firm from the pension fund.

The indictment of Alvin Baron, 51, formerly of 1931 Prairie Sq., and now residing in Las Vegas, Nev., is the first to result from the government's probe into the operation of the Teamsters' Central States, Southeast and Southwest Areas Pension Fund based in Chicago.

The special grand jury Tuesday returned the nine-count indictment against Baron, charging that in 1974 he accepted a $200,000 payoff from Foy Bryant, president and owner of Mount Vernon Memorial Park, Fair Oaks, Calif., in exchange for influencing the Teamsters' Pension Board of Trustees to grant a $1.3 million loan to Bryant's firm.

THE INDICTMENT also accuses Baron of using the mails and telephone in the scheme and failing to report the $200,000 payoff on his 1974 federal income tax return.

U.S. Atty. Samuel K. Skinner, who announced the indictment, said Baron is in Las Vegas and has not surrendered to federal authorities, but is expected to do so shortly.

Baron was the asset manager of the pension fund from March 1973 to March 1975 and had authority to review all loan applications made to the pension board and to make recommendations on loan approvals.

THE PENSION board approved the $1.3 million loan to Bryant's firm on Dec. 12, 1974.

Assistant U. S. Attorneys Steven P. Handler and Marianne Jackson, who investigated and will prosecute the case, said the $1.3 million loan has not been fully repaid.

Baron, an attorney and owner of the Baron Hotel in Las Vegas, faces a maximum 11 years in prison and $16,000 fine if convicted on all counts.

SKINNER SAID no evidence of organized crime involvement in the scheme has been found.

Baron allegedly received the $200,000 in cash payments made over a period of five months from November 1974 to March 1975, according to the indictment.

Skinner said the U. S. Justice Dept. investigation began when Bryant brought information to federal authorities. He added the Teamsters' pension fund and its executive director, Daniel J. Shannon, have cooperated in the probe.

IN ANNOUNCING the indictment, Skinner said the case "is the first result of our renewed investigation into the Central States Pension Fund," which holds assets of more than $1 billion.

He said information uncovered by the Justice Dept. has been turned over to the joint special task force of the Justice Dept. and U. S. Dept. of Labor investigating the Teamsters pension fund.

The task force was formed approximately nine months ago to look into the operations of the pension fund. Skinner is a member of the inter-departmental policy committee concerning the fund.

"I do believe we're going to be looking very closely at the results of the task force investigation to determine if there has been criminal activity," Skinner said.

He predicted the investigation will be a lengthy one and may take years to complete.

Residents upset with pesky raccoons

'Masked marauders' put bite on homes

by BILL HILL

Tony Mann never has seen the "nocturnal marauders" that make scratching noises in his chimney and on his roof. But he knows all too well that they are there. He has house repair bills totaling $1,600 to remind him.

Raccoons last spring gnawed a hole the size of a man's fist in his roof. Mann lives in the Scarsdale subdivision of Arlington Heights.

"Holy Moses, it poured in here when we had a couple rainstorms," said Mann, who has had two sections of his roof repaired, walls replastered, wiring replaced and draperies cleaned.

He and many of his neighbors fear similar damage will occur again, because the raccoon population in the area appears to be increasing.

"I'M SURE women think they're cute and are feeding them. They wouldn't do it if they ever saw their teeth," Mann said.

And the problem would probably subside if residents stopped leaving food for them, said village sanitarian Bill Mack. He said the problem is accelerating. Another subdivision, Stonegate, in the village is beginning to have problems with oppossums, he said.

The raccoons seem to favor chimneys as their homes, which has led several Scarsdale homeowners to have their chimneys capped. Rich Kyska of Steve's Sheet Metal Co. said he has put the metal wiring over about nine chimneys in the Scarsdale area. One day, recently, he had to wait four hours before three raccoons were forced out.

MANN, WHO HAS lived at his Scarsdale home for 23 years, remembers the raccoon problem beginning about two years ago. He thinks the 50-foot fir trees on the north side of his home are used by the raccoons to reach the roof.

"I'm sure there's one in there (his fireplace) right now. I can hear'em gnawing and scratching every night, even when the TV is on," he said.

"They're around here thick, there's no question about it," he said.

Kyska said the raccoons look about 1-year-old. "They're the best climbers I've ever seen. They can climb right up the brick walls of the chimneys. They're worse than squirrels," he said.

Ann Haben, 616 S. Belmont Ave. said she had raccoons in her fireplace for about two months before she had them coaxed out and her chimney capped.

One of her neighbors recently had a raccoon walk up to her screen door, she said.

"We always heard them scratching in there, and once we heard a little whine. But they didn't do much damage," Mrs. Haben said.

But the cost of making a few repairs and getting her chimney capped with wire totaled about $300.

"For that, I could have bought a raccoon coat," she said.

37-cent garbage rate hike urged

A 37-cent increase in the monthly residential garbage rate in Arlington Heights was recommended Tuesday night by the finance committee of the Arlington Heights Village Board.

The rate hike will beome effective Jan. 1, 1977 if adopted by the village board.

The new rate includes the annual 5 per cent increase guaranteed in the contract for the village's garbage service between the Laseke disposal firm and Arlington Heights and reimbursement for increased dumping charges at the Wauconda landfill.

UNDER THE PROPOSAL, monthly bills for homeowners who receive twice-a-week service will rise from $5.84 to $6.21 — a 6.3 per cent increase. The increase was recommended by the village administration.

Henry Laseke, president of the disposal company, had been expected to ask for a larger rate increase because of boosts in labor costs. Laseke's employes, who are members of the Teamster's union, recently received a 75-cent an hour wage increase.

Tehy will receive similar increases next year.

"Henry thinks he can live with this increase because he should be able to ride along in '77 without any new truck purchases," said Lester Ploetz, a spokesman for Laseke.

The new labor contract will mean Laseke's labor costs will increase $9,000 a month.

LASEKE SAID he did not ask to be compensated for the high labor cost increases because he had "no grounds to, legally or otherwise."

"This is something we'll just have to live with," Laseke said.

The recommendations of the finance committee also called for monthly rates for commercial businesses to be $4.27 a month, and $2.70 a month for schools.

Hearing tonight on unit district

Opponents of a unit school district in the Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 area will continue their testimony during a public hearing at 7 p.m. today at Elk Grove High School, 500 Elk Grove Blvd., Elk Grove Village.

The unit district proposal would combine Forest View and Elk Grove high schools and Dist. 59 schools under one school board and one administration. Dist. 59 is one of seven elementary districts in the High School Dist. 214 area.

The unit district has met strong opposition from Dist. 214 officials, who say the proposed district would take about 40 per cent of the high school district's tax base but only about 27 per cent of the students.

Dist. 59 officials favor the unit district, saying tax revenue generated from the local residents would remain in the area rather than being used to support the larger area of Dist. 214.

More public hearings are scheduled for Dec. 8 and 14. After all interested parties have been heard, Cook County Schools Supt. Richard Martwick will make a recommendation on the unit district to Illinois Schools Supt. Joseph Cronin, who will decide whether an election will be conducted on the issue. If an election is conducted, only Dist. 59 residents will be eligible to vote.

Village called 'model of propriety'

no one can complain (as some builders do about the City of Chicago) that they are either obsolete or self-contradictory."

• Strict regulation of land development. "Habits of playing by the rules can be engineered through systems and procedures which open up the decison-making process and which identify individuals who might be susceptible to conflicts or temptation."

The village's "above-board" reputation works as a warning to developers that payoffs are not tolerated, Gardiner said.

"The village has developed a very strong tone of 'we don't fool around here.' Other places haven't taken the time like Arlington Heights to make sure its integrity is retained. It (the village) has had a preventive policy that doesn't give corruption a chance to come in and spread," Gardiner told The Herald.

"We're finding that the most critical thing is that the (local) officials decide to get ahead of the game and make a proactive commitment," he said.

Corruption in local government exists in different degrees of frequency around the country, Gardiner said. "Corruption has been widespread in the East, but if you put Arlington Heights in California, no one would pay any attention to it. They take honesty for granted out there," he said.

"In the context of Chicago area communities, and certainly among the new communities, Arlington Heights has an outstanding record of resisting these problems," Gardiner said.

Trustees give pat on back to staff

ers, which has built more than 1,500 homes in the village, agreed with Gardiner's report that Arlington Heights "stands head and shoulders above the average village government."

"In more than 20 years, I've never heard of a hint of any stigma attached to Arlington Heights," Meyerson said. "But this is a two-way street. You have to have a corrupt builder to find a corrupt municipality. Corruption has to do with honest officials and honest staff and strong indications to developers that they won't get anywhere with a payoff."

A CAPTURED nationalist guerrilla stands in a Rhodesian police station courtyard Tuesday among the bodies of 17 insurgents and two African civilians slain by Rhodesian troops in recent days. In Geneva, meantime, black nationalist leaders said they would not accept white control of the Rhodesian army and police in an interim government.

Mexico City put on alert after blasts

Mexico City — Police Tuesday ordered 10,000 men on maximum alert following four bombings only hours before the arrival of future First Lady Mrs. Rosalynn Carter to attend the inauguration of Mexico's new president. The four explosions rocked a U.N. office, a bank, the headquarters of Mexico's national industrial Chamber of Commerce, and the laboratories of the U.S. pharmaceutical company Johnson and Johnson. Three persons were injured in the blasts and police said there was heavy property damage.

Upon arrival, Mrs. Carter said: "I am delighted to return to Mexico, especially for such an historic and important occasion and want to thank Mrs. Lopez Portillo for her personal invitation." The bombings came shortly after the arrival of Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and his wife, Nancy, from an Acapulco vacation. Kissinger will lead the official U.S. delegation to the inauguration of President Jose Lopez-Portillo on Wednesday.

Quake relief convoys hunted

Army troops searched for missing relief convoys in the snow-swept mountain roads of Eastern Turkey Tuesday as workers buried earthquake victims in mass graves covered by ice. With the death toll standing at more than 4,000 from last Wednesday's earthquake, Turkey's worst in 37 years, new aftershocks hit areas close to the borders of Soviet Armenia and Iran, but no further damage or casualties were reported. Rescue officials in Van said a dozen trucks bringing relief aid to remote villages in the mountains had not been heard from since Monday and troops and highway patrols were fighting through snowdrifts in search of them.

Temperatures plunged to 22 below zero Tuesday in regions near the Iranian border, further hampering relief efforts. Yahya Perisan, a local politician in Caldiran said that "45,000 people have been left out in the open, without food, water and some kind of shelter."

Train-bus crash kills 19

A freight train, moving along the tracks without lights in predawn darkness, crashed into a crowded bus at a railway crossing in Mexico City Thursday, killing 19 persons, and injuring 20 others. The bus driver, 22-year-old Cesar Rodriguez Ruiz, said he did not see the oncoming train as he began moving across a railroad crossing because it had no lights. The train hit the rear end of the bus, which was jammed with 60 passengers.

Syrians follow U.S. plan

A force of 1,000 non-Syrian troops will move toward the Israeli border to extend the Arab peace-keeping force's control over southern Lebanon along the lines of U.S. mediation recommendations, the rightist Christian radio reported Tuesday. Elsewhere in the country, hitches developed in the peace-keeping force's call for rival militias to surrender the heavy weapons they used to pound Lebanon's cities to pieces during more than 19 months of civil war.

Christian rightist and Moslem leftist groups, charging each other with stubbornness, have waited to see which side will be the first to give up its arsenal of mortars, rockets and cannons.

The nation

GOP told to quit bickering

The nation's Republican governors were told Tuesday that the GOP is not dead but could end up on the critical list if it cannot shed an elitist image and quit bickering over ideology. The tiny band of Republican governors, their numbers reduced to 12 in last month's elections, came to their winter meeting expecting "a graveside service," said Gov. Robert Bennett of Kansas who was elected chairman of the GOP Govenors Association, "But the funeral that was scheduled for the Republican Party will not be held," he said.

Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., however, warned the chief executives the party is in danger of fading into history while "clinging to some narrow notion of ideological purity." In a plea for party unity, Dole said the party's right and left wings are in "fruitless competition" and "if this condition persists and we spend the next four years splitting ideological hairs, we are going to be very ineffectual as the party in opposition. We have to find the common ground we can all stand upon, and not isolate ourselves on separate islands that drift further and further apart."

Petition for Liddy pardon

The wife of G. Gordon Liddy, protesting his "unfair" prison sentence for the Watergate burglary, Tuesday presented the U.S. pardon attorney with a 7,000-name petition for executive clemency. Mrs. Liddy said Liddy's 21-year sentence is "unfair" since other Watergate defendants have served "an average of about six months."

Liddy will complete his 43rd month of confinement on Dec. 7. Pardon Attorney Lawrence Traylor said the petition will be considered as "support" for a formal clemency application Liddy filed in September.

Long urges Carter to cut taxes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate's top tax strategist Tuesday urged President-elect Jimmy Carter to couple a $15 billion spending increase with a $10-15 billion tax cut to create jobs, spur consumer spending and pull the economy out of its slump.

Chairman Russell Long, D-La., of the Senate Finance Committee said at a luncheon meeting with reporters that Carter plans to limit his economic stimulus to spending an estimated $15 billion in funds appropriated for the current fiscal year but not used.

Long said Carter should watch the economic indicators closely and "if the situation looks more gloomy by the time he takes office," consider asking Congress for a tax cut. Long said he will not initiate a tax cut alone and "it's not going to be done unless they want it."

THE FORD administration, Long said, has used "everything available" to stimulate the economy through federal spending. That "has taken it as far as it was going to take us, and it looks to me as if the recovery is slowing down to a halt," he said.

Long said Congress could act within 60 days or less on a "quickie tax cut" if Carter requested it. It should be designed to stimulate private industry jobs, he said, and consumer spending.

The package Long considers would give individuals a rebate — possibly as soon as April — on 1976 taxes, a tax cut in 1977 that would lower withholding rates and a 2 to 4 per cent increase in the investment tax credit for businesses — which hopefully would create more jobs.

Carter's over-all tax cut would have to be at least $10 billion, Long said, "or you might as well forget about it" since it would be so minimal as to have no practical impact.

"It wouldn't upset me if he asked for $15 (billion) or more," he continued.

Long said the cuts would be added to tax reductions approved last year for 1977. The cuts expiring at the end of 1977 should be looked at individually and "likely as not, if the economy remains in the shape it is now, we will not let them expire," he said.

RTA just can't say no to controversy

by LYNN ASINOF
a news analysis

The Regional Transportation Authority has once again turned a simple matter into a heated controversy.

Discussion of a proposed pay plan should have been routine. The RTA Board, however, took the matter into executive session Monday and discussed it behind closed doors. The board then refused to release the pay plan report prepared by consultants.

The reason for the secrecy was the consultant's report improperly included confidential information such as employe evaluations.

"YOU REALLY couldn't discuss that pay plan without from time to time discussing individual people, the jobs they fill and compensation," RTA Board member Nicholas Bosen of Chicago, said.

Several board members, however, said this information should never have been in the report. At least one member was angry because inclusion of the confidential information left the board tiptoeing around the Illinois Open Meetings Act.

The act prohibits closed door meetings except when individual personnel matters, litigation and land acquisition are discussed. Pay plans do not qualify.

D. Daniel Baldino, Evanston board member was irritated by the mistake, which could have easily been avoided with some advanced preparation.

"A PAY SCALE is public information and should be released," Baldino said, charging the matter was poorly handled by the RTA administration. "They don't know how to deal with the public. They don't even know how to handle their board."

RTA Chairman Milton Pikarsky tried to duck out on the issue, vanishing down the hall as reporters tried to determine why the confidential information had been included in the report.

Baldino said he had some difficulty obtaining a copy of the report, which he said staff members intended to keep under wraps.

The consultant's report, prepared by Hay Associates for a $30,000 fee, would have been handled as a routine and boring item if board members had discussed it openly.

By meeting in secret, the RTA created an issue where none existed. Board members all agree that such issues are the last thing the strife-torn agency needs while trying to tackle transportation problems in the six-county area.

TV violence, crime linked: expert

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — A pediatrician told the National Parent Teacher Assn. Tuesday he sees a link between violence on television and the 100 per cent increase in murder, rape, robbery and aggravated assault since 1960.

Dr. Keith Reisinger, assistant professor of pediatrics and psychiatry at the University of Pittsburgh and the lead-off expert in the first of eight National PTA hearings on violence and television said:

"The underlying issue . . . is that this electronic educator fosters moral and social values about aggression in daily life that is unacceptable in a civilized society.

"Three-fourths of all evening programs and 10 per cent of children's cartoons involve violence as standard content."

HE URGED television networks to work harder at eliminating violence and suggested consumers consider economic boycotts of products advertised on programs featuring violent acts.

But the broadcast industry already is doing a great deal to "remove gratuitous violcence," according to Roy Danish, another participant in the PTA's hearing held in Pittsburgh.

The director of the Television Information Office in New York said it would be wrong, however, to present a picture of the world in whch there is no conflict and no aggression.

"The amount of violence is being cut down," Danish said. "According to a study done for Columbia Broadcasting System, the incidence of violence in prime time on the three networks was cut 24 per cent from 1974-75 to 1975-76."

DR. MARGARET McFARLAND, child psychologist from the University of Pittsburgh, said violence is a fact of human life and 'the mastery of it is one of the most important tasks of growing up."

"Violence, like love, is human," she said. "Violence has energy behind it that can be directed positively."

McFarland said the dilemma about television today comes from "it being so relatively new in society."

In time she feels television will realize to a greater extent "its potential for positive instead of negative effects."

Reisinger said parents should monitor the television their children are allowed to watch.

"They should watch with their child and help their child to choose the programs best for them," he said.

U.S. seal project forum Thursday

A discussion of the U. S. government's annual Northern Pacific fur seal harvesting project will be at 8 p.m. Thursday at Riverside-Brookfield High School as part of Brookfield Zoo's 1976 lecture series.

Dr. Daniel Laughlin, the zoo's veterinarian, will discuss the project on which he served this year as the humane observer.

The lecture at the school, 1st Avenue and Forest-Washington streets, Brookfield, is free to zoological society members and all children under 13. A $1 donation will be requested from nonmember adults.

The way we see it

Suburbs should not be charged to support city

Chicago Mayor Richard Daley appears to have the suburbs over a barrel with his plan to raise the city's water rates in order to help pay for other city services not related to the water department.

Des Plaines and more than 70 other suburbs now buy water from Chicago. Eight more Northwest suburbs, members of SHARE + 3, are considering spending $42 million to $62 million for a pipeline to O'Hare Airport for Chicago water.

It is unfair to ask these suburban customers to pay anything more than reasonable costs incurred by the city in supplying water they need.

Independent Chicago Ald. Martin J. Oberman has charged that $13 million of the $15 million the new water rates will raise are actually going to be spent not on the water system, but on other city needs. About $4.7 million will be used to create a pension fund for water department employes, but another $8.2 million will pay for other city services, he says.

If Chicago wants to use higher water rates to avoid the appearance of tax increase, as Oberman suggests, suburban customers should be billed at a discount rate that covers the cost of delivering Lake Michigan water but not the extra price of other city services which the suburbs do not receive.

Niles Mayor Nicholas Blase has proposed that the suburbs file a lawsuit to get lower water rates.

Blase thinks it is unfair for the suburbs to pay through water rates for Chicago fire hydrants, sewers and the cost of free water the city gives to hospitals and other institutions. These items, which at least are logically connected to the water department, seem trivial compared to the policy problem posed by charging suburban residents for Chicago city services.

Some Northwest suburban officials suggest that how Chicago spends the money from its water bills is unimportant. All that matters is that the rate is reasonable and the water available, they say.

But there is the large issue that building the cost of non-water system services into the water rates means the suburbs will be subsidizing the cost of Chicago government with no real control over how much extra they will pay or how it will be spent.

If the new water rates are passed, and political realities in Chicago suggest that they will be, we encourage Blase and other suburban officials to look seriously at the possibility of legal action to bring suburban water rates into line with the city's cost of providing the services.

For we are jolly good fellows! For we are jolly good fellows!

Chinese blast fails to shake world

by TOM TIEDE

WASHINGTON — (NEA) An entire generation of people has come on line since those days in the 1950s when pregnant women were warned not to drink milk, when the Three R's in school were rems, rads and roetgens, when Americans were so fearful of atomic radiation that they dug holes in their backyards for emergency shelter.

The new generation knows little of it. Of the poison of the senses that follows the poison of the air. And perhaps this ignorance helps explain why the young are not now unifying in the streets, bitter and angry, to protest the radiation clouds from China that dust this nation and the world with disgusting pollution.

And yet the kids are not alone in their inertia. Almost everyone — from traditional pacifists to concerned parents to government leaders — has met the Chinese impudence with an irresponsible lack of concern. We are being sprinkled with what in a real sense is particulate death but we are moved to do nothing but remain silent.

LAST YEAR when the French announced intentions to explode a bomb above a South Pacific island, public outrage was intense; picketers marched in Paris, gentle people made plans to sail to the island on potential suicide missions, and the test was eventually blocked by the legal manipulations of an international group of jurists.

But China's identical impertinence is somehow seen as different. A spokeswoman at SANE (Society Against Nuclear Explosions) says her group is split down the middle as to whether even to discuss the China bombs. Many members feel the Chinese nuclear effort is, good Lord, "healthy" because it "breaks up the nuclear monopoly held by the superpowers, a monopoly which forces the Third World to arm."

Tom Tiede

And so SANE has decided to protest, but not very much. The same can be said about many of the traditionally anti-war, anti-violence communes. It's the negative consequence of selective outrage. God save the good memory of Mao, to whom all this radiation is dedicated.

Ironically, the leftish forces are thus companions in hypocrisy with the United States government, a body that also has not had the heart to complain but faintly about the Chinese tests. China has tested three bombs in the atmosphere this year, only one of which merited concern, albeit mild concern, by the American state department.

TO THE CONTRARY, the government has carefully avoided criticism of the Chinese, and at the same time has labored to keep the public silent. The government was the first to learn of the radioactive clouds, and commensurate fallout, but left it to others to make this information public. Since then officials have pursued the matter slowly, all the while furiously denying ("trust us") that there is any danger.

One conclusion here is that the government cares more about its relations with China than its responsibility to its own people. Henry Kissinger met with Chinese officers one week and did not ever raise the subject of fallout. Sources admit the government would rather encourage than stop the Chinese nuclear tests, for this is more a worry to Russian than to U.S. interests.

Therefore left to their own devices, without a peep of contrary opinion, the Chinese will likely continue to spread on the winds of miasma of their weaponry. Concurrently the film of iodine 131 and strontium 90 will continue to thicken on the earth. And we all will continue to hope it doesn't rain or snow on certain days of the week.

WHAT'S MORE, other nations' bombs may soon add to the worry. Perhaps two dozen countries have potential nuclear capabilities. Even a backward regime such as Libya's can begin testing, if, as expected, black-market materials become available. Hence the world may yet see again, say, 1958, when a total of 79 atomic bombs were exploded, and housewives washed their vegetables thoroughly.

When will we ever learn? Albert Einstein once remarked that the menace of the nuclear mentality, though great, is as it should be, for "it may intimidate the human race into bringing order into its international affairs." Sadly, he added it up wrong that time.

EACH YEAR it seems to be more important than the last to help the forgotten children's fund for mentally retarded in our local state institutions. Without the redemption of the Betty Crocker coupons we had in the past 10 years, our collection will be cut in half. This is the same fund that Jack Mabley of the Chicago Tribune and WIND radio station is promoting. Many of these residents have no family or friends and each year look forward to our caring and giving.

Won't you drop off a small gift to me at 1128 E. Patten Dr., Palatine, Ill., 60067. Anything suitable for residents from children to 90-year-old men or women.

I TURNED OVER $60,000 worth of National food tapes, valued at $200. This purchased many musical items, tamborines and a guitar for the folk masses and musical programs for the mentally retarded at Dixon State School. The stores were closing all around us, but the tapes came rolling in and multiplying like the loaves and fishes. Nothing could stop us, and I'm sure they will be delivered in time for Christmas. Wasn't it a thrill for us all to join together and make others happy,without costing us any money?

Full test ban needed

The recent attention given to the Chinese above-ground nuclear testing offers ample evidence that efforts must be made to negotiate an expanded test ban agreement.

China, like France, is not part of the current agreement which prohibits nuclear testing in the atmosphere. While the recent test produced no measurable threat to the rest of the world, the incident seems to point to the need for additional controls.

Other world powers conducted their above-ground testing before the agreement was reached. Those nations including the United States, placed more importance on gathering data than the potential for harming the health of citizens near the blast area and those who might be under the cloud of material which fills the skies after the blast.

China's test offers new cause for concern. That nation will not be the last to develop a nuclear capability. Middle East and Third World nations are now seeking the technical assistance to develop their own nuclear capability.

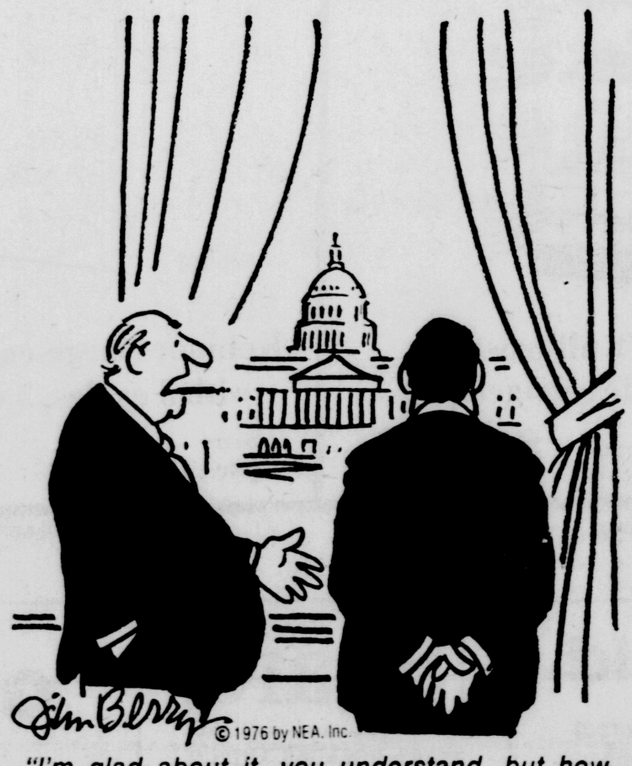

While these nations are currently talking only about peaceful uses for this power, the potential is there for an offensive and defensive capability.

The China test portends the possibility that many nations will begin polluting the atmosphere with potentially dangerous material. The results could be an endless series of warnings and alerts, with radioactive material circling the earth in increasing frequency.

The United States should take the lead to initiate a new round of talks aimed at getting those nations not currently involved in the test ban agreement to pledge their support against atmospheric testing.

Apparently these developing nations will not be denied the right to develop their own nuclear capability, which hopefully will be directed towards peaceful uses. However, some rational limitations must be found so that the people of the world are not threatened constantly with new above-ground testing.

Readers respond to Fujita

IN REGARDS TO SANDRA Fujita's letter entitled "Pro-abortion can be pro-life," (which I do not see the similarity) I would like to respond.

Many good meaning people like Sandra have approved of legalized abortions because of the hard core cases (such as rape, incest and deformity). These cases, however, are very minimum indeed compared to the millions of babies murdered because of women's whims. Unfortunately, when you say "yes" to abortion for the country, any old reason justifies it. And we all become guilty of these murders if we approve of its legalization.

Sandra says that she believes in quality of life, not just quantity. Just what standards of evaluation do we use for so-called "quality." Do you mean physically acceptable to look at, mentally acceptable to tolerate, emotionally stable enough? Really, is there any human being on this earth perfect enough to put the "death finger" on another?

Some of the most happy, tolerant people living are retarded and some of the most vicious, miserable people living are found acceptable.

If an unwanted baby's life is not protected, neither is yours. Abortion today "justifies" euthanasia tomorrow, and that is one reason we must fight abortions.

The anti-abortion people have every right to try to impose their morals on others, just as pro-abortionists have the right to try to impose their morals. Maybe it's because the anti-abortion people keep pricking consciences that they are unliked by some.

Helen March
Arlington Heights

IN RESPONDING TO SANDRA Fujita's letter of Nov. 22, I would like to speculate on what percentage of the 2 million babies aborted this year were products of rape. I would say about zero per cent. A study of 3,500 rape cases treated in the Minneapolis-St. Paul area over a 10-year period revealed zero cases of pregnancy. Medical research indicates that an extremely high percentage of women exposed to severe emotional trauma will not ovulate.

I am also speculating on how fortunate the thalidomide babies must be feeling today, to have been born before the era of abortion on demand. How many of them do you think regret the fact of their birth. I would say zero per cent again, but would be interested to hear from one of them.

I have little sympathy for the greater percentage of these 2 million women who aborted their babies for reasons of personal convenience.

Abortion is a cop-out. It is easier to kill a child than to care for him; and I don't think the people who take this easy way out are leading lives of "quality." Can "pro-abortion be pro-life?" No way!

Bet your bottom dollar, world's money important

Speaking dollar-wise

by Robert S. Rosefsky

What's all this going on with the currencies of the world, particularly in Britain and Mexico? Can their drastic drop in value affect the U.S. dollar and our personal bank accounts?

Let's try to understand it this way: Imagine two primitive tribes living near each other, the Fish people and the Berry people. They're friendly neighbors, and they happily trade between each other: one standard-size fish for one standard scoop of berries. All goes well for many years as the tribes work hard to catch fish and grow berries. They even invent ways to smoke the fish and preserve the berries so they can store them for later use.

Each tribe begins to slowly build up a surplus of goods, both fish and berries. Then some strange things happen with the Berry people. Their chief crop supervisor gets an attack of laziness and doesn't tend to all of the needs of the crop. As a result, the berries come in smaller than usual. The Fish people are disturbed by this, and they begin to demand two scoops of the smaller berries in exchange for one fish.

The Berry people react by planting more crops, doubling their output of the smaller berries. This, they thought, would correct the problem.

BUT THEY FAILED to reckon with the Potato people and the Firewood people, two other nearby tribes with whom they had been trading, and who had also accumulated a surplus of berry preserves and smoked fish.

When the Firewood people heard that the berries were worth less than they had been, they became quite concerned, for they had a huge excess of preserves. Potatoes were holding steady in value, and the Firewood people decided to get rid of their berries at any price and convert to potatoes.

When the Berry people learned that their product was being dumped on the market, they panicked. To keep the price of berries from dropping too far, they began to use their excess supply of smoked fish to buy up all of the berries. The Firewood people took the fish, and turned around and used them to buy potatoes, feeling that potatoes would hold their value better than the fish would.

But this transaction caused a glut of fish on the market, the huge excess of the Berry people having been released. And as the supply of fish increased, the price of it began to go down.

Now, picture the United States as the Fish people, Britain as the Berry people, Germany as the Potato people and Saudi Arabia as the Firewood people.

BRITAIN'S LABOR strife caused a drop in productivity of that nation's output (the berries). To keep international trade on an even keel, the government started printing more money (symbols of the berries). Saudi Arabia had accumulated a huge supply of British money (pounds) as a result of raising the price of their product (oil). Concerned that their excess of pounds was rapidly becoming worthless, they decided to dump them and exchange them for a more stable currency, the German money.

Rather than let the value of the pound drop out of sight, Britain herself started buying them, giving up their excess supply of dollars (fish) in exchange. Saudi Arabia then converted their new supply of dollars into deutsche marks. Meanwhile, the excess of dollars in the market causes its price to drop relative to the other currencies. That means it takes more dollars to buy imported products, and the more imported products we buy the more prices will go up.

At the same time, American-made products seem cheaper to foreign buyers, and the natural inclination of manufacturers is to increase prices as long as the demand is there. Also, we Americans are also affected by these price increases.

The only sure thing about this whole phenomenon is that the future will be much more tantalizing than the past. In other words, we ain't seen nothing yet.

Price stability hurt by steel hike: Carter

The decision by America's three biggest steel companies to raise some prices by 8 per cent Tuesday provoked protest from President-elect Jimmy Carter, who said the increases would be an "unsettling influence on price stability." Carter warned oil producing counties could use the steel price hike as an excuse to raise their own rates. U.S. Steel Corp., Bethlehem Steel Corp. and Republic Steel Corp. said Monday they would join six other major producers in raising prices on sheet and strip products by 6 per cent, effective today. The increase means the industry this year will have raised prices 12 per cent on the steel used heavily by auto and appliance makers. The Aluminum Co. of America also announced price increases Monday. Alcoa said they would raise by 10.2 per cent the price of "aluminum rigid container body stock" — used to make beer and soda cans. The increase is from 52.8 cents to 58.8 cents.

UPS offers Teamsters new pact

Teamster negotiators have received a new contract offer from United Parcel Service that could end a lengthy strike interfering with pre-Christmas shipping on the East Coast, it was learned Tuesday. Some 18,000 parcel service employes in 15 East Coast states have been on strike since Sept. 16, forcing the Postal Service and the bus companies to assume the burden of normal UPS shipments. Although union and company officials declined to discuss the negotiations, sources said the company put forth its latest proposal Monday when negotiations resumed at the Teamsters international headquarters in Washington, D.C. These sources pedicted the offer would be put to a membership vote. Representatives of 74 East Coast union locals were reported to have been called to Washington to hear the terms of the new offer, and one source remarked: "They wouldn't do that if they weren't going to submit it to the membership."

Farm prices hit 43-year low

Prices for raw farm products slumped another 3 per cent during the month ending Nov. 15 to continue the sharpest harvest-season decline in 43 years, the U.S. Agriculture Dept. reported Tuesday. Prices were 6 per cent below a year ago. A comparison of farm prices with the cost of things farmers buy also showed farm product values fell from 68 per cent of the "fair earning power" parity standard in October to 66 per cent — the lowest level since the spring of 1933 — compared with 74 per cent a year ago. The monthly report on farm product prices and farmers' costs showed the price decline, the fourth consecutive drop in the average for raw agricultural commodities, was led by declining prices for grains, hogs, cattle and grapefruit. Higher prices for eggs and soybeans partially offset the losses. The farm price average is a rough guide to climbing trends in retail food prices, but because it often fluctuates sharply from month to month it does not always foreshadow immediate changes in supermarket prices which are affected by other factors including rising processing costs and the need to feed some grains to livestock before they reach the consumer.

Frigid chill spurs gas use record

The early arrival of frigid temperatures drove Chicago area residents to use more natural gas Monday and Tuesday than in any other November period on record, the Peoples Gas, Light and Coke Co. said Tuesday. The utility said deliveries in the city from noon Sunday through noon Tuesday totaled an estimated 3.74 billion cubic feet of natural gas — 35 per cent more than was sent out during the previous record period of Nov. 25-27 last year. The North Shore Gas Co., a People's Gas subsidiary, also distributed a record amount of fuel to its customers in 46 suburban communities in the 48-hour period. Deliveries were estimated at 432 billion feet of gas, 31 per cent higher than the previous November high set in 1975.

Layoffs increase, hiring declines

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Layoffs of American factory workers increased and hiring by manufacturers declined in October for the third consecutive month, the U.S. Labor Dept. reported Tuesday.

Factory employes, meanwhile, enjoyed accelerated pay increments during the three-month period ending in September, the department said in a separate report. But wage and salary increases for all American workers were off slightly in that period.

These statistics confirmed the employment picture that drove joblessness up to 7.9 per cent during October. November's unemployment figures are to be released later this week. Most economists foresee little improvement.

The factory layoff rate rose from 1.5 per cent in September to 1.7 per cent in October.

The hiring rate meanwhile declined slightly to 2.4 per cent in October, also the third consecutive monthly decline and the lowest rate since last January.

Wages and salaries rose an average 1.5 per cent during the third quarter of 1976 — compared to 1.7 per cent in the previous quarter. It was the smallest wage increase in any three-month period since September 1975, when the Bureau of Labor Statistics first prepared its so-called Employment Cost Index.

Salaries and wages have risen 7.2 per cent in the past year.

Wage increases accelerated during the third quarter only for factory, clerical and professional employes.

Stocks drop 2.83 pts. to 947.22

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices gave ground grudgingly Tuesday in sluggish trading on the New York Stock Exchange as investors cashed in on recent gains and waited anxiously for the government's economic outlook report due today.

The Dow Jones industrial average, off more than four points in the morning, finished with a loss of 2.83 to 947.22. The blue-chip average, which had gained 28 points in the two weeks prior to Thanksgiving, lost 6.57 points Monday.

The NYSE common stock index shed 0.19 to 54.80 and the average price of a common share decreased by 11 cents. Standard & Poor's 50-stock index, which includes some over-the-counter stocks, lost 0.34 to 102.10.

DECLINES LED advances, 792 to 597, among the 1,872 issues crossing the tape. The 483 unchanged issues reflected considerable investor uncertainty.

Volume totaled 17,030,000 shares, down from the 18,750,000 traded Monday.

Prices closed lower in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange. The average price of a common share decreased by five cents. Volume totaled 2,020,000 shares, compared with 2,460,000 traded Monday.

Skinner urges 'best' for Justice

by TONI GINNETTI

U. S. Atty. Samuel K. Skinner Tuesday said the Carter Administration should appoint the "best qualified" person to head the U. S. Justice Dept. here, even if that means his dismissal.

Skinner said he wants to remain as U. S. attorney for the Northern District of Illinois, but if a more qualified person could be found for the job, he would step aside.

"If there's someone more qualified, and I mean this, he should have the job," Skinner said. "This office has come to stand for something. I don't expect to hold this office because I'm in it. I expect to earn it everyday I'm here."

SAMUEL SKINNER

SKINNER'S REMARKS came in the wake of comments from U.S. Sen. Adlai E. Stevenson that he will recommend to President-elect Jimmy Carter Illinois' federal appointees on the basis of merit.

Stevenson, a Democrat, will have a major voice in federal appointments in Illinois for the Carter Administration.

Speculation has arisen that Skinner, appointed to a four-year term last year by President Ford, will be kept on because of his department's record of successes, but statements from Stevenson so far have been ambiguous on the matter.

Skinner said he has not been contacted by the Carter Administration or by Stevenson. He said, however, he was encouraged by Stevenson's comments last week that merit selection will be used to determine appointment recommendations.

"THERE IS NO question in my mind that he (Stevenson) has pledged to the people in this district that the most qualified man should have this job," Skinner said.

"I'm convinced that he means what he says," Skinner said. He said high standards and merit selection of appointees and federal judges should be followed and added, "I'm encouraged that that kind of criterion is being set."

Skinner joined the U. S. attorney's office in Chicago in 1968 and has held several top posts in the department, including deputy chief of the criminal division, chief of the special investigations division and first assistant to former U. S. Atty. James R. Thompson.

Seek 'national tone of concern'

Cities plead for Carter priority

by DONALD H. MAY
Third in a series

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Mayor Hans Tanzler of Jacksonville, Fla., says the effects of inflation and recession will require his city to undertake "drastic and unprecedented belt-tightening."

Mayor Harry Kessler says Toledo, Ohio, faces a deficit of up to $6 million if it maintains services at expected levels.

Mayor Margaret Hance says Phoenix, Ariz., was "in the grip of a crisis that combines the twin evils of high unemployment and high prices," causing the city to make "reductions in expenditures such as have not been experienced in nearly 20 years."

Those reports, gathered by the U.S. Conference of Mayors in a survey published in July, illustrate the financial plight of many American cities. They are asking President-elect Jimmy Carter to find a solution.

THREE-FOURTHS of the American people live in urban areas, and the plight of cities is one of the major problem areas facing the Carter Administration.

New York City, rescued for now from bankruptcy by congressional loans, is the biggest and most extreme example. But the mayors' group found financial problems in lesser, varying degrees in cities of every size and scattered in every geographic area — even in the Southwestern Sunbelt — despite the wealth that has flowed there in recent years from other parts of the country.

The group collected budget reports and mayors' "state of the city" speeches from 136 cities with populations of more than 30,000 in 37 states. Only 21 did not mention or reported themselves free of any financial bind.

Even that symbol of affluence, Beverly Hills, Calif., reported that for the two years its expenditures have exceeded revenues by almost $2 million despite personnel cuts.

In Detroit last year, nearly one of four persons in the labor force was out of work. That raised welfare costs and reduced tax collections. Detroit, like most cities, was prohibited by law from operating at a deficit. And it already was taxing its residents to the legal maximum.

SO ITS ONLY choice was to cut services and lay off employes to balance its budget. In 18 months, Detroit reduced its payrolls from 25,000 to 21,000 workers, among them firefighters, public health nurses and — in a city with one of the highest crime rates in the country — hundreds of police officers.

It closed recreation centers, senior citizens' programs and immunization clinics and reduced hours at museums and libraries.

"It's not a recession in Detroit," says Mayor Coleman Young. "It's a depression."

In Newark, N.J., at the beginning of this year, one out of four employable residents was out of work and the jobless rate among those aged 18 to 25 was 40 per cent. One-third of the population was on some form of public assistance.

Newark no longer could afford to use its federal revenue-sharing funds for capital improvements, but had to spend them just to maintain basic services.

Officials of the mayors' conference say many of America's cities have been in decline since the 1930s.

THE REASONS include profound shifts of population. Many older cities of the Northeast and Midwest have lost population to the suburbs and to "Sunelt" areas of the South, Southwest and West. Between 1960 and 1973 Pittsburgh lost 20 per cent of its population. Houston gained 40 per cent.

Those moving out of many of the old central cities tended to be in the middle and upper incomes. Those moving in tended to be poor, blacks from the South and whites from Appalachia who required more services.

Business also was moving out of the central cities, and with it went jobs. In 1973, there were 13 per cent fewer private sector jobs in Detroit than there had been in 1970.

All these changes increased the need for city services while lowering the tax base to pay for them. Newark's property tax base has declined 20 per cent in the last decade.

The recent recession, high unemployment and inflation added to these existing problems. Most of the cost of local government is in salaries and therefore highly affected by inflation.

"The cost of maintaining basic services has become so high that it is slowly strangling urban America," Newark's Mayor Kenneth Gibson, president of the Conference of Mayors, told Congress.

"MOST CITIES have only one means of raising money they need to maintain basic services. This is the property tax. With no other alternative, city after city has faced the unpleasant prospect of cutting vital services or raising the property tax."

Either way, the problem perpetuates itself, Gibson said.

"The higher we are forced to raise taxes to provide basic services, the more businesses and home owners are forced to leave. This means fewer jobs, greater demands on city services and fewer ratables (the property tax base) to provide them. If we were to cut down on the delivery of services, the result would be the same. More businesses and home owners would be forced to leave."

The federal government has been spending $60 billion a year in aid to state and local governments.

Incredibly, no one seems to know how many federal programs there are which aid cities. The Brookings Institution estimates 600. Others say 1,200, and the Conference of Mayors estimates 1,800. Whatever the number, it is a reduction, since the trend in recent years has been to consolidate city aid programs into bloc grants and lump them into revenue sharing.

Just about everyone agrees these programs are not solving problems. An interim report by President Ford's Committee on Urban Development and Neighborhood Revitalization, composed of federal agency heads, said in October:

"THE TENS OF billions of dollars now expended each year by the federal government for the cities are spent in a tangled and often contradictory fashion."

For example, present tax laws encourage new building in the suburbs rather than renovation of older structures in the inner cities.

The group recommended a retargeting of programs rather than "massive expansion," which it said would cause inflation.

A task force of the Business Roundtable, a group made up of chief executives of major American corporations, said in September urban problems are "a critical national issue." It urged business to look for and lobby for solutions and proposed creation of a government commission to study welfare and revenue sharing.

The weekend after the November election, the Conference of Mayors met in Chicago to draft "priorities" to present to the President-elect.

THEY CALLED on Carter's administration to set "a national tone of concern" for urban problems. They asked for access to the White House and endorsed Carter's general proposals for government reorganization.

More specifically, they urged new programs to create jobs; consolidation of city aid programs; more federal money for cities "as required" and as government reorganization takes place; a permanent "countercyclical" program to pump funds into cities during times of recession; and creation of a new Urban Development Bank similar to the World Bank, which would make low interest loans to businesses investing in inner city areas.

The mayors also endorsed Carter's campaign proposal to free local governments — and eventually state governments — from welfare costs, shifting that burden to federal taxpayers.

Carter promised during the campaign to develop "a coherent national urban policy that is consistent, compassionate (and) realistic." His press secretary, Jody Powell, recently told reporters urban problems would be a top priority.

Powell recalled Franklin D. Roosevelt's aid to the South in the 1930s. He said Carter feels he "will have, in a sense, a chance to return that concern and offer help to northern urban areas."

200 years at the same location.
Maybe folks were a little skeptical about taking stock in America 200 years ago.
We were young. At war. With no experience.
And who knew if we'd ever pay back the money?
Well, 200 years have passed. And the U.S. government has always paid in full. To the penny.
Now that's not a bad record.
In fact, you might say we're now a pretty well-established outfit to do business with.
So join the Payroll Savings Plan and save with today's Bicentennial issue of Series E Savings Bonds. It's easy. It's automatic.
And it's safe. After 200 years, you know we're here to stay.
Series E Bonds pay 6% interest when held to maturity of 5 years (4% the first year). Lost, stolen or destroyed Bonds can be replaced if records are provided. When needed, Bonds can be cashed at your bank. Interest is not subject to state or local income taxes, and federal tax may be deferred until redemption.

Take stock in America.

Ask Andy

Aphids pester plants for their food

Andy sends the Encyclopaedia Britannica's 1976 Yearbook of Science and the Future to Angel Devies, of Tacoma, Wash., for her question:
WHAT IS THE LIFE CYCLE OF THE APHID?

The troublesome aphids are a large group of small, soft-bodies, pear-shaped insects. If you have them in your garden, you can bet they are up to no good. Their favorite foods are the juices of plants, and their handy dagger-sharp beaks are perfect tools for sap-sucking. Chances are, the first aphids you spot will be wingless. Soon enough winged forms will appear and spread throughout the greenery.

The life cycle of the aphids is unusual, even in an insect world where the unusual can be expected. Most species spend the winter as an egg, safe and snug in some hidden spot. In the spring, when new plants are emerging and old plants are sending out new growth, the eggs hatch into tiny wingless aphids — most of them females.

The young aphids mature very quickly and generally within a week are giving birth to more aphids. These second-generation aphids are born alive and ready to go. In a short time, perhaps three or four days, the second generation can also produce living young. Each female will produce about 100 young before she dies. By the end of summer it would take a computer to figure out how many millions of aphids came from the first springtime eggs.

With so many mouths to feed, food sometimes becomes scarce. Sad to say, this doesn't stop the pesky aphid. Almost as if by magic a generation of winged females will be born. These will feed for a few days and then fly to a new plant and begin producing more young.

As summer gives way to fall, a change begins to take place in the aphid world. The females still produce new aphids, but these are the last generation. This group consists of both males and females, and they are born with wings. Their purpose is to mate and thereby produce the fertile eggs that will hatch out the following spring.

Andy sends a Student Globe to Kathy Nielson, 14, of Salt Lake City, Utah, for her question:
WHY DO LEMMINGS COMMIT SUICIDE?

Legend would have us believe that lemmings — plump little animals related to the mouse — march to the sea by the score and drown themselves. No such mass suicide, however, exists in real life. True, lemmings do pour down from their mountain homes into the woodlands, and some may spill over a cliff into the sea. But this is not a deliberately suicidal action on their part: They are merely moving away from hordes of enemies and wholesale starvation.

Lemmings are tiny four- to five-inch furry animals who belong to the order Rodentia. They live in the cold, northern parts of the world and eat mainly grasses and lichens. Every so often their numbers increase to the point where the crowded conditions are intolerable. Mass evacuation of the area occurs as they swarm in every direction, easy prey for enemies and swift victims of teeming seas. The few survivors that remain at home start the cycle all over again.

Modern slam bid easier

Win at bridge

by Oswald and Jim Jacoby

Playing at six spades, South has no trouble at all. East takes his ace of spades at trick one and that is all the tricks the defenders can even come close to.

Six notrump makes just as easily.

Which is the better contract? Six notrump will fail if East holds four diamonds to the jack. A spade declarer would have no worries about that provided spades broke 3-2, so that he could draw trumps and ruff one diamond. With spades as trumps there are possible ruffs in case one defender holds a singleton, the suit is led and holds the ace of trumps and can give a ruff. That doesn't matter. Either contract is a good one, but there is practically no way to get six notrump. Seventeen points opposite 12 with only one fivecard suit is just not supposed to produce a notrump slam.

This hand is given here to show how much better modern bidding — even simple modern bidding is than 1930 bidding.

You don't have to be an expert to reach that six-spade contract, once you respond one spade. Back in that 1930 final match both South players made the 1930 response of two notrump. Both North players raised to three notrump. No one bid spades and no one thought of a slam.

An Ohio reader wants to know if it is a good idea to concede a one bid in rubber bridge when it does not give declarer game.

We don't think so. Contracts of one are likely to be very interesting and you can get lots of fun out of playing many of them.

Do you know about the home heating system that pulls energy out of thin air?

Introducing the heat pump.

Scientists have known for centuries that the air around us is a storehouse of heat energy. But it's only been in recent years that they were able to develop an efficient way to tap that abundant resource—the heat pump. Today, it is the only commercially available heating system that provides an answer to shrinking supplies of other fuels.

How the heat pump works:
Basically, the heat pump moves heat from one place to another. It uses electricity to extract heat from a limitless source—the heat in outdoor air. During winter, enough heat remains in the air—even on the coldest and cloudiest days—to be extracted by the pump and transferred indoors as clean, flameless heat.

And during warm weather, the process automatically reverses, removing excess indoor heat and humidity like an air conditioner.

Better efficiency.
In short, the heat pump does the job of both a furnace and an air conditioner. But there's an important difference. In northern Illinois the heat pump can produce more than 1½ units of heat energy for every unit it consumes. That's better efficiency than any other current heating system. That could mean significant long-term savings on heating costs.

To get the full advantages of the heat pump, it's important to get a quality product, properly installed and reliably serviced. For the name of qualified installers in your area, call G. W. Berkheimer Co. (Westinghouse Distributors), 312-374-4411; General Electric Co., 312-496-6356; Lennox Industries, Inc., 312-593-2820; or Temperature Equipment Corp. (Carrier Distributors), 312-681-6220. If you want additional heat pump information, call your local Commonwealth Edison office and talk to one of our marketing engineers.

Merit Cigarette Sets New Taste Standard.

'Enriched Flavor'™ breakthrough brings unprecedented taste to low tar smoking.

Today there's a way to get real taste from a cigarette without high tar.

That's the report on a new taste discovery called 'Enriched Flavor.' A way to pack flavor—extra flavor—into tobacco without the usual corresponding increase in tar.

The cigarette packed with 'Enriched Flavor' tobacco is remarkable new MERIT.

If you smoke, you'll be interested.

Tests Verify Taste

In tests involving thousands of smokers of filter cigarettes, the majority reported MERIT delivered more taste than five current leading low tar cigarettes having all the way up to 60% more tar.

Repeat: delivered more taste.

In similar tests against 11 mg. to 15 mg. menthol brands, MERIT MENTHOL was reported to deliver as much—or more—taste than the higher tar brands tested.

You've been smoking "low tar, good taste" claims long enough.

Forget top names; Illini looking at Henson-type coach

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. — Cecil Coleman will try to put his finger on the new Illini football coach this week, and the speculators will be hard on his trail.

But Cecil is as difficult to track as an Indian scout. He paraded Lou Henson into a crowded press conference a year and a half ago, and no one even knew the New Mexico State basketball coach was in town, much less hired.

No, you can't guess with the Illini athletic director.

BUT IT IS possible to anticipate those individuals who qualify on the basis of (1) successful experience and (2) likely interest.

You eliminate, first of all, those coaches who would almost certainly prefer to remain where they are at this time — Emory Bellard at Texas A&M and Joe Paterno at Penn State, for example. This group might also include Maryland's bowl-bound Jerry Claiborne, and this writer's choice as America's finest young coach, Mike White of California.

You must also eliminate those whose price tag would come too high, like Pitt's Johnny Majors

(Coleman said two weeks ago he was headed for Tennessee) and Colorado's Bill Mallory.

You then drop those coaches who have not been successful, such as former Chicago Catholic League mentor and Michigan aide Frank Maloney, whose 3-8 season included a 41-3 setback at Iowa and left him 11-22 in three seasons at Syracuse.

AND YOU RETURN inevitably to the more logical names — Jim Young of Arizona, Don James of Washington, Fred Akers of Wyoming and possibly Miami of Ohio's Dick Crum, 21-1-1 in 1974-75 before falling unexpectedly to 3-8 this season.

Why might Young be a candidate in a 5-5 season (going into Saturday night's clash with Arizona State)?

Many reasons. He is a former Miami and Michigan aide under Bo Schembechler, served as head coach in a Rose Bowl game when Bo was ill and has remained a strong Midwest recruiter. He was 8-3, 9-2 and 9-2 in his first three years at Arizona, a part of the country Coleman knows well, having attended Arizona State.

Whereas Akers runs the Wishbone-T, a fact that could work against him, Young has operated an I-back and veer-type offense and has balanced it with an average of 25 passes per game.

WITH A PAY scale of $32,500, and no great TV deal, Young is not a financial impossibility like Oklahoma's Barry Switzer.

But the really intriguing thing about Young this weekend is the fact he has informed Tucson writers that he won't be around for a couple of days. And they don't think he is going recruiting.

What kind of an individual is he?

"He is all football," informs Tucson writer Bruce Johnston. "He is kind of a hard fellow to get to know, because he's most interested in coaching than dealing with the press or the alumni. People here think he might be interested in Illinois (or Purdue) although he would never say. He is a hard guy to waggle a statement from."

THIS, OF COURSE, sounds very much like a Coleman-type person. And if it isn't Young. it will undoubtedly be someone like him. Someone, say, like Washington's James, who beat USC and UCLA a year ago after moving from Kent State . . . but fell to 5-6 in a disappointing season that saw him lose to Indiana but thump Minnesota, 38-7.

Would a pro be considered?

Coleman says yes, and that brings to mind former

Love dealt to Nets; Warriors trip Bulls

The Bulls, seeking to make room on their roster for the returning Jack Marin, Tuesday night sent veteran forward and team all-time leading scorer Bob Love to the New York Nets for cash and an undisclosed draft choice.

The trade, announced 45 minutes before the Bulls game with Golden State at the Stadium, failed to inspire the rest of the team as the Bulls went out and dropped their 12th straight game, a 125-120 decision.

Love, who lives in Palatine, will be 33 on Dec. 8. He became expendable with the return of Marin, who was reactivated after a bout with mononucleosis.

LOVE HAD been told during a morning practice that he would be traded. The forward, who joined the team in a trade with Milwaukee in the late 1960's, averaged 18 points and 6.1 rebounds per game during his career. Last season his shooting percentage from the field slipped to a career low of .390.

Marin, who played in 79 games last year for the Bulls, averaged 10.7 points and 2.8 rebounds per contest.

Other forwards on the Bulls are 22-year-olds Scott May and Cliff Pondexter, plus 24-year-old Mickey Johnson.

"Love is gonna work right into the team," said Nate Archibald after leading the Nets to a 104-103 victory Tuesday night over the New York Knicks. "He is a super shooter, probably one of the best there ever was. We are playing as a team, but the guys are not shooting the ball. We have to do more shooting."

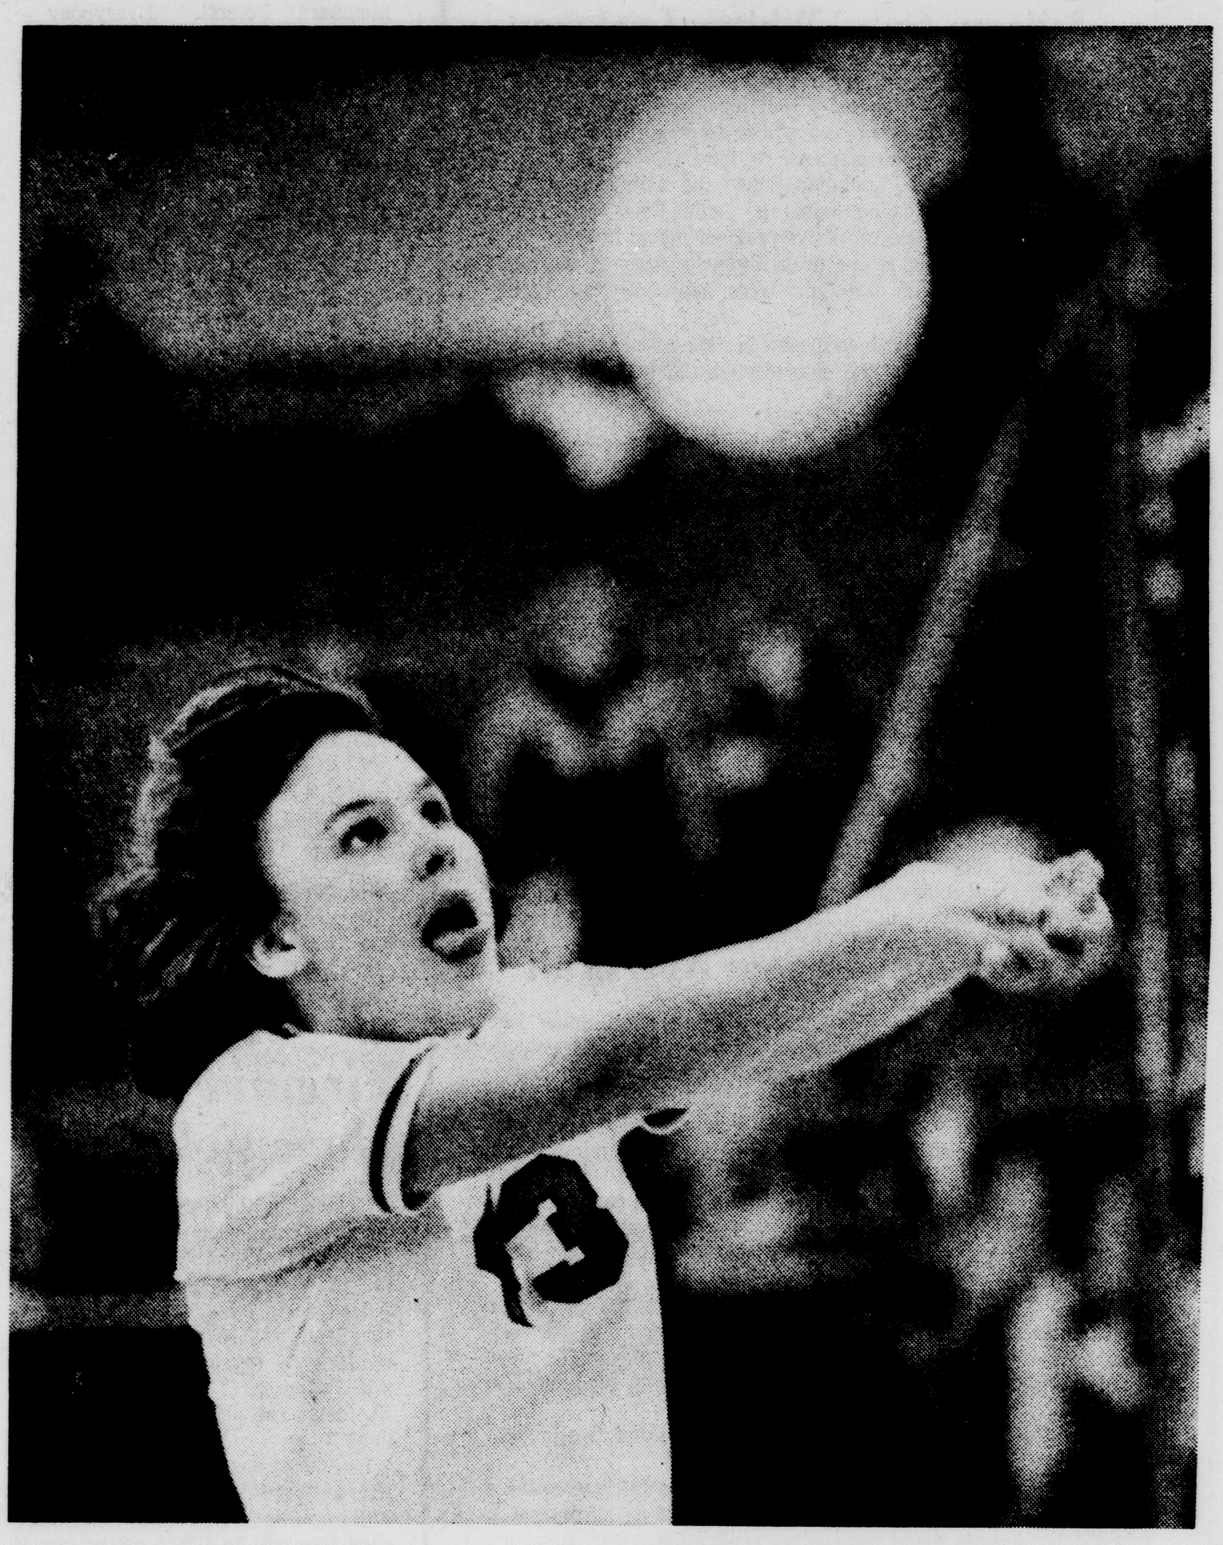

THE NETS have been desperate for a scoring forward since selling Julius Erving to the Philadelphia 76ers for $3-million in October. New York's offense has revolved around guards John Williamson and Nate Archibald, both averaging more than 20 points per game.

The Nets' top scoring forward, Jan van Breda Kolff, is averaging slightly more than 10 points per game.

Love, 6-foot-8 and 215 pounds, was a three-time all-star and was also chosen three times on the second-team all-NBA defensive team. His best season was 1971-72 when he averaged 25.8 points per game and 518 rebounds. He averaged 20 points or more in six of his seven seasons with the Bulls.

Phil Smith paced the Warriors past the Bulls Tuesday, scoring 33 points. Rick Barry chipped in with 28 as Golden State held a 103-90 lead with 9:15 left in the game.

THE BULLS rallied with seven straight points but then fell behind when Smith hit nine points over the final eight minutes to keep the Warriors in front.

Pittsburgh's Tony Dorsett tackles Mr. Heisman

by FRED McMANE

NEW YORK (UPI) — Tony Dorsett of Pittsburgh, whose own father thought he was "too small" to succeed in collegiate athletics, Tuesday won college football's highest individual accolade when he was named winner of the Heisman Trophy as the outstanding player in the nation.

The 5-foot-11, 190-pound senior tailback from Aliquippa, Pa., won in a landslide vote over tailback Ricky Bell of Southern California and senior running back Rob Lytle of Michigan, conducted of 893 registered and qualified electors from coast to coast.

Dorsett, the nation's leading rusher this season with a 177-yards per game average and the only player ever to surpass 6,000 career yards, received 701 first place votes and 2,357 points to beat out Bell by 1,011 points. Bell, the third place finisher in last year's voting, had 73 first place votes and 1,346 points while Lytle received 35 firsts and 413 points.

IN 11 GAMES this season Dorsett gained 1,948 yards and scored 22 touchdowns in leading the Panthers to a perfect 11-0 season. During his four-year career he rushed for an NCAA record 6,082 yards, scored 59 touchdowns and set 13 NCAA rushing records.

Winning the Heisman Trophy was especially rewarding for Dorsett because he felt he should have won it last season when he finished fourth behind Ohio State's Archie Griffin, the only two-time winner.

"To win it this year makes up for last year," Dorsett admitted. "I think there are three reasons why I won. Number one, I played on an unbeaten football team, and number two I did have an outstanding season, setting the all-time rushing record. Also, an awfully good football player like Ricky Bell came up lame and that hurt his chances."

Bell, a bruising 6-2, 225-pounder, was expected to offer a stiff challenge to Dorsett for the Heisman Trophy. He looked like the front-runner when he rushed for an NCAA season high of 347 yards against Washington State in the fifth game of the season, but he then sustained injuries in successive games and managed to gain over 100 yards in a game only once during the last six weeks of the season.

WHILE DORSETT admitted he

Bury Elgin's Spartans, 94-70

Harper wins home cage opener

by CHARLIE DICKINSON

The Harper Hawks grabbed their first win of the season Tuesday night after a pair of tough opening losses, but head coach Roger Bechtold still can't tell too much about his team after they blasted the Elgin Spartans, 94-70.

"Elgin lost two or three players who quit the team," Bechtold said. "In a game like this the players can sense they can win pretty easily so they start to free lance and do things they might not normally get away with."

The Hawks didn't get away with much of anything in the first half, although they led at intermission, 36-29.

WITH ELGIN'S Dave Mills getting nine of his team high 15 points, the Spartans held the lead several times through the early part of the contest before losing it for good on a pair of free throws by Harper's Ron Sulaski.

Sulaski, who scored only six points but snatched 10 rebounds, "played an excellent game," Bechtold said. "He didn't score much but he rebounded and played excellent defense.

"I had a lot to say at halftime. Everybody was lethargic and this is the third game this year when we've been slow starting."

The Hawks opened a 10 point lead at 28-18 on a pair of baskets by Steve Duffy (who finished with 10 points) and single hoops from Mike Nichol (10) and Scott Green.

DAN BREEN, WHO led all scorers with 20 points, picked up a dozen of them in the second half as Harper began to exploit Elgin's shaky guards for steals and turnovers.

The Hawks, especially with guards Ken Hanks and Jim Arden working like a polished pickpocket tandem, stole the ball 13 times.

Hanks finished with four thefts and Arden three.

Breen, who hit 10 of 18 shots from the floor, rammed home eight straight points in the second half, two of them coming off nicely turned fast breaks.

THE HAWKS ALSO helped themselves with 26 of 44 shooting from the field in the second half as Arden (12) and Ed Chmiel (14) joined Nichol, Duffy and Breen in double figures.

Thirteen Hawks made the scoring column, prompting Bechtold to say, "We've got some depth, for a change, this year. We showed some nice balance."

Bechtold also got to loosen up Mark Russo and Green, who both have been injured.

"Russo wasn't moving like he can," Bechtold said. "A groin injury is hard to heal. When he's healthy, he'll really help us."

PAUL JENSEN SCORED 12 and Wally Rhode 11 for the Spartans.

Harper will get a truer test of their basketball mettle Thursday when they host Oakton at 8 p.m. at St. Viator High School.

Cards win, Bison upset in volleyball

by PAUL LOGAN

The North Division of the Mid-Suburban League was nearly "upset city" in girls volleyball Tuesday night.

Going into the night's action, both division leaders had perfect records. Arlington just barely survived a home match with former MSL champ Hersey, 20-9, 13-20, 23-21.

Buffalo Grove wasn't as fortunate, falling to visiting Wheeling, 21-19, 20-15. The Bison will play Arlington for the North title Dec. 9.

OTHER ACTION had Forest View whipping Prospect, 20-12, 20-9; Schaumburg stopping Conant, 20-3, 20-8 and Fremd defeating Palatine, 20-13, 20-12.

Arlington, 4-0 in the North and 6-1 overall, appeared off to an easy win following the first game. The Cardinals ran off six straight points to beat the Huskies, 1-2 in division play.

But just as they had done the week before against Buffalo Grove, the Huskies charged right back. They broke a 7-7 deadlock with six unanswered points. Hersey earned its 20th point after some excellent saves by Nina Stanton and Nancy Gawell.

The final game was tight all the way with both teams feeling the tightness. Arlington took a 12-8 lead on a spike by Rosemarie Schumacher. But Hersey eventually tied things at 15-all on a serve by Stanton that was barely in bounds.

TWO ARLINGTON players ran into each other, giving Hersey its 16th point, and Debbie Barnd's spike made it 17-15.

A strong spike by Laura Sanders returned service to Arlington. With Jody Lyon doing the serving, the Cards went up 19-18.

Hersey regained the lead at 20-19 on the serves of Beth Frye and a spike by Barnd.

Two straight spikes by Sandy Norman made it 21-20 Arlington. After a Cardinal spike went into the net to tie the game again, Arlington regained service.

A MIXUP ON defense by Hersey saw Arlington take a 22-21 lead. Then the girls of Coach Linda Angeloff got the two-point bulge they needed when Norman smashed the winning spike.

"I just hate these kind of games," said the relieved Cardinal coach. "We just didn't play as a team tonight. I really think the girls felt the pressure tonight. They knew they had to win."

Pistons' Barnes gets year in jail

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — Marvin Barnes, a talented but troubled forward who was the defunct American Basketball Association's Rookie of the Year in 1974, was ordered Tuesday to serve one year in jail for violating parole.

Superior Court Judge Anthony A. Giannini ruled Barnes, who has yet to play a game for the Detroit Pistons, violated parole by carrying a handgun in his luggage at Detroit Metropolitan Airport Oct. 9.

Barnes in 1974 was convicted of assaulting former Providence College teammate Lawrence Ketvirtis with a tire iron and given a one-year suspended sentence and three years' probation.

"I'll just have to do my time. I can take the wait," Barnes said quietly after leaving the courtroom accompanied by his mother, Luella, his attorney and several friends.

Asked about his future, he said "I'll have to talk with the people in Detroit and see how that comes out. I'll be talking to them shortly."

Barnes contended the gun belonged to a girl friend, Evida Behagen, who was traveling to St. Louis with him. He said he repeatedly tried to get airport officials to check the baggage into the plane's cargo hold because he knew it would show up on a scanning machine.

Barnes said he had a woman in San Antonio, Tex., buy the gun for Behagen, who lived in New York City and wanted protection.

Axe falls on Cubs' Whitey Lockman

New Cub general manager Bob Kennedy made his first move since taking over the North Siders and announced Tuesday that Whitey Lockman had been relieved of his duties as a vice president and director of player development for the Cubs.

A former Cub manager, Lockman joined the club in late 1964 after managing minor league teams at Dallas-Fort Worth and Tacoma. He was named director of player development in 1970.

But player development is one area Kennedy plans to overhaul and Lockman's days with the Cubs were apparently numbered since Kennedy took over.

Lockman took over as Cub manager in 1972 as a successor to Leo Durocher and managed the club through the 1973 and 74 seasons.

U.S. 'negligent' in Clemente crash

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (UPI) — A federal court has found the U.S. government negligent in the 1972 crash of a DC7 cargo plane that killed Hall of Fame baseball star Roberto Clemente.

The court said authorities failed to inspect the plane before takeoff.

A suit was filed by Vera Zabala Clemente, widow of the Pittsburgh Pirates player, three months after the crash. The decision fixing responsibility for the the accident now makes it possible for Mrs. Clemente to sue the government for damages.

In a U.S. District Court ruling filed in San Juan and made available Tuesday, Federal Judge Juan R. Torruella rejected the Federal Aviation Administration's contention that regulations for inspection of aircraft on takeoff and landing were "discretionary" on the part of local FAA officials.

Reports filed following the accident showed the four-engine plane took off about 9:30 p.m. Dec. 31, 1972, with 148,943 pounds of supplies on board, more than two tons over the 144,750-pound limit.

Players union proposes NFL draft

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The pro football players union has made two proposals to the club owners aimed at saving the college draft from legal extinction, it was learned Tuesday.

Ed Garvey, executive director of the NFL Players Association, said the alternatives were suggested at a bargaining session with owner representatives in New York Monday but there was no immediate response.

The annual draft has been threatened by a federal court decision which found the system an illegal violation of the antitrust laws in a damage suit brought by former Washington Redskin Jim "Yazoo" Smith.

Although the ruling is being appealed by the NFL, no further court action seems likely before the usual January date for conducting the draft. This leaves open the prospect that one or more of this year's college crop of players might obtain an injunction against being selected by the pros.

Garvey said negotiators for the players submitted two suggestions to deal with the situation:

- The draft be conducted as in the past but the team selecting a player be given only until May 1 to sign him. If no agreement is reached, the dispute would go to salary arbitration.
- The American and National Football Conferences within the league conduct separate drafts which would result in two teams bidding for the services of many of the college stars.

Garvey said there were no significant signs of progress in the five hour talks between both sides Monday in an attempt to reach a new labor agreement.

Texas pitcher Kekich hurt in melee

MARACAIBO, Venezuela (UPI) — Texas Rangers southpaw Mike Kekich was reported in delicate condition Tuesday following an emergency operation late Sunday to remove his spleen.

Kekich was rushed to the Maracaibo Clinical Hospital shortly after being accidentally punched during a scuffle by Clarence Gaston, his teammate on the Tiburones de La Guaira in the local winter league.

Kekich was trying to separate Gaston and pitcher Milt Wilcox after Gaston attacked Wilcox.

Doctors at the Clinical Hospital said that the blow had practically dislodged Kekich's spleen, causing internal bleeding. Following removal of the spleen, Kekich was reported in delicate condition.

Kekich, 31, was born in San Diego, but resides in Artesia, Calif.

Brother of decathlon champ killed

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI) — Harold Jenner, the 18-year-old brother of Olympic decathlon winner Bruce Jenner, died Tuesday from injuries sustained in a car accident earlier in the day. A 16-year-old girl also died in the crash.

Jenner, who never regained consciousness after the auto he was driving struck a utility pole on Old Canton Road at 10:51 a.m. He died about 3 p.m. in Hartford Hospital, authorities said.

Canton police said Jenner's passenger, Judith Hutchings, of Canton was killed instantly.

Jenner was taken first to the John Dempsey Memorial Hospital in Farmington and later transferred to Hartford Hospital. His parents and brother were with him at the time of his death.

A Canton police spokeswoman said the accident was still under investigation.

And in other sports news...

The New York Yankees, seeking right handed hitting power, acquired slugging outfielder Jim Wynn from the Atlanta Braves in a straight cash deal. The 34-year-old former Houston mainstay hit 17 homers, drove in 66 runs and led the National League with 127 walks last season . . . On another baseball front, the Oakland A's announced that former St. Louis player and manager Red Schoendienst has been signed on as a coach.

Former Pittsburgh Pirate manager Danny Murtaugh suffered a stroke Tuesday afternoon and was admitted to Crozer-Chester Medical Center in serious condition.

would "cherish" the Heisman Trophy, he said the award wasn't as important to him as the team's going undefeated and beating Penn State in the final game of the year.

"Beating Penn State was the highlight of my career at Pittsburgh," said Dorsett. "After all those years of Penn State dominating us, it meant we were finally the best team in the East. I will cherish the Heisman Trophy and take it home, but my only regret is that none of the other players on our team can do the same. That's why finishing an unbeaten regular season with a win over Penn State and hopefully becoming national champions is more important to me."

Four years ago when he was being recruited by college teams, it didn't appear that Dorsett would ever mature into an outstanding player. He was a scrawny, 155-pounder in high school and his father felt he would never succeed in the grueling world of college sports.

"I guess nobody thought I would ever amount to anything," remembers Dorsett. "Everybody who looked at me thought I was too small. I almost quit school my freshman year but my mother talked me into going back. She said, 'If you quit, the only person you'll hurt is yourself.' If I could give the Heisman Trophy to anyone else other than myself, I would give it to my mother. She was the one who inspired me."

ONE MAN WHO didn't share the opinion that Dorsett was too small to take the physical pounding of college football was Pitt coach, Johnny Majors.

"I knew from the first time I ever saw him scrimmage he was something special," Majors said of Dorsett. "There are three things I think that have made him the outstanding running back he is — his approach to practice, his use of his speed and his great anticipation. Never in the past four years have I ever had to tell him anything twice."

Dorsett admitted the most significant factor in his development as an outstanding runner was added weight.

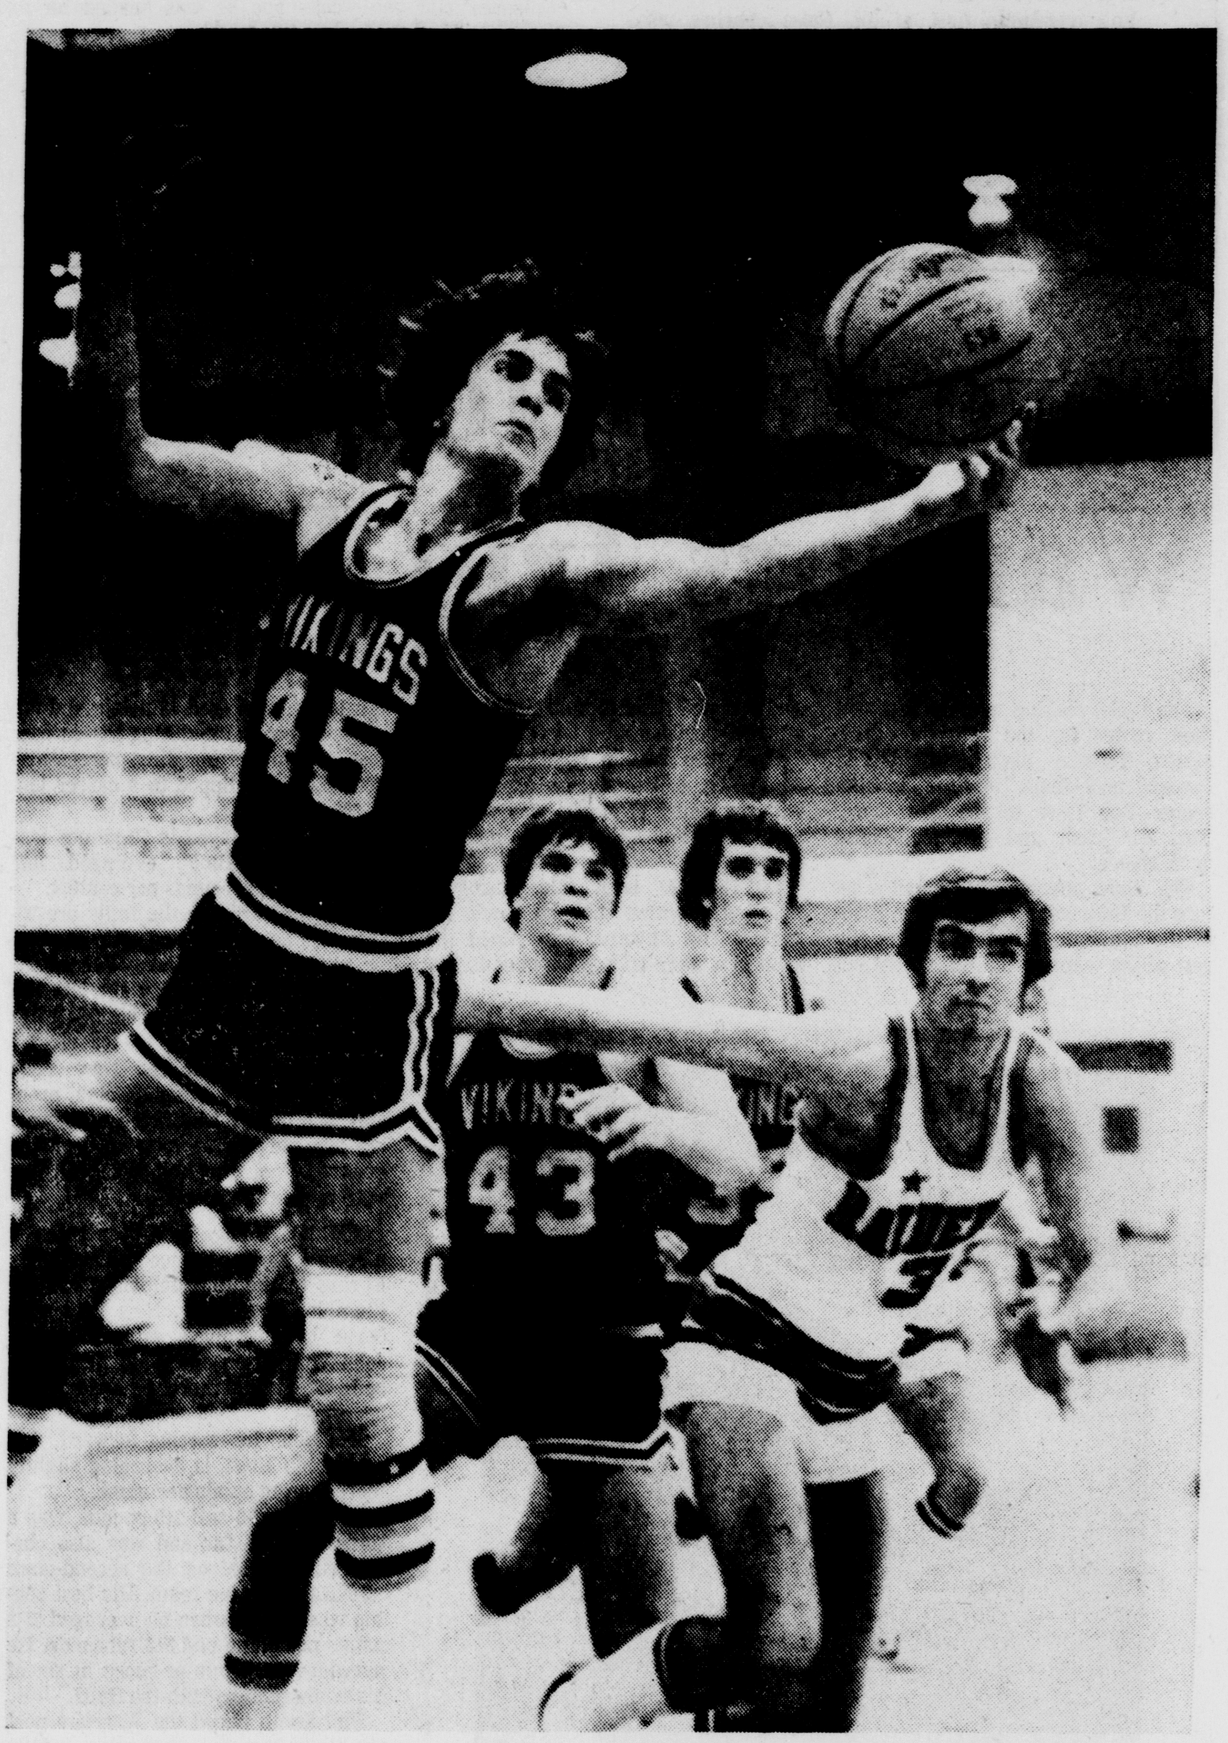

"During the offseason I've been doing a lot of weightlifting," he said. "Because of that I went from 155 pounds as a freshman to 192 pounds this year. It's allowed me to be more durable, break the tackles I previously didn't and survive the hard knocks."

TERRY MILLER of Oklahoma State, a junior running back, finished fourth in the voting followed in order by quarterback Tom Kramer of Rice, quarterback Gifford Nielsen of Brigham Young, quarterback Ray Goff of Georgia, running back Mike Voight of North Carolina, quarterback Joe Roth of California and quarterback Jeff Dankworth of UCLA.

Others receiving votes were quarterback Vince Ferragamo of Nebraska, wide receiver Larry Seivers of Tennessee, fullback Pete Johnson of Ohio State and quarterback Rick Leach of Michigan.

Virginia Slims plans ticket sale

Tickets for the 1977 Virginia Slims tennis tournament, Feb. 7-13 at the International Amphitheatre, will go on sale the week of Dec. 6.

Both reserved and general admission seats will be available either by mail or in person at the Virginia Slims office, 22 E. Huron St., Chicago, Ill. 60611. The price range is from $4 to $8.

Individual box seats also are available at $10 each for the first four days of the tournament. For the final three days they will be $12. A patron box of six seats, good for all 10 tournament sessions during the week-long tournament, sells for $500.

Besides the downtown Virginia Slims office, reserved seats can be purchased at Chicagoland Indoor Tennis Association clubs. Rotary Clubs of Chicagoland, in the role of presenter for the upcoming tournament, also are making reserved tickets available to their members. The sale of tickets through the Rotary Clubs will benefit the Rotarians' program for the handicapped.

Reserved and general admission tickets to the Feb. 7-13 event will go on sale at Ticketron the first week in January.

Forget top names for Illini grid job

Illini Chuck Studley of the Cincinnati Bengal staff.

Former Illini coach Jim Valek, who knows NFL personnel as well as anyone in his job as assistant general manager of the New England Patriots, is stumping for former pro quarterback Bill Nelson, a brilliant offensive strategist who Valek calls "a real goin' Jessie" who could attract players and create an imaginative offense.

BUT RECRUITING is so vital to the job that Coleman won't be anxious to hire someone who has been away from it . . . unless the man has an electric name.

And, oh yes, you can forget Ara Parseghian. He did happen to visit Champaign-Urbana a few weeks back but it was strictly business and he has stated repeatedly that it would take an ideal pro situation to get him back to the sidelines. He doesn't like recruiting.

Striking Lanes heads group of 4 challengers

While Petterson Safety Service continues to cruise to the first-half championship in the Paddock Women's Classic Traveling League, the battle for second place has developed into a four-team horse race.

Petterson opened a substantial lead early in the season and has been able to maintain it. The kingpins have 67 points and a comfortable 13-point stranglehold on the lead.

But hovering in pursuit and still within striking range are Striking Lanes (54), L-Tran Engineering (53), Ten Pin Bowl (52) and Ziebart of Des Plaines (51).

THE COMPETITIVE climate was created by Ziebart's 5-2 triumph over Striking Lanes, Ten Pin's 7-0 sweep over Thunderbird Country Club and Tower Cleaners' 4-3 win over L-Tran. Petterson topped Mason Shoes, 5-2.

L-Tran's Lorrie Nichols emerged as the top-scoring kegler for the evening with a splendid 636 series derived from games of 211, 210 and 216. Her 191.3 average also leads the league. Teammate Vi Douglas chipped in with 567-213-202.

Tower Countered with Jan Broderick's 529-207, Betty Parkhurst's 538, Helen Ruchs 202 and Ruthmary Baurhyte's 200.

Ten Pin's sweep was highlighted by Betty Peterman's booming 609 series off a 225 opener. Marge Lindenberg kicked in a 203 game and sub Connie Staudenmayer a 212. Dee Kachlemuss' 517 and Mary Yurs' 516 were tops for Thunderbird.

ZIEBART RALLIED after an opening-game loss behind Joanne Christensen's 551, and Pat Myslinski's 547-224 while Bette Brelle's 524 showed the way for Striking.

Petterson's decision was underscored by Bobbie Kostelny's 554 series, a 548-205 by Winnie Lohse, Carol Sander's 537-202 and Bonnie Kuhn's 523. Mason replied behind Peggy Wales' 545 and Rita Buge's 535.

Rolls within 5.5 points of leaders

Formco charges into contention

by DON CHRISTENSEN

Bowlers were hot at Des Plaines Lanes despite the cold weather outside, with one team bowling over 3000 and 10 bowlers scoring 600 or better in the Paddock Classic.

Formco Metal Products was the hottest team in the league with four men blasting over 600 and the fifth man just a mark away. Greg Fugiel, filling in capably, led the way with 268 and 644, closely followed by Fred Hansen's 621, Bob Kula's 619, and Mike Heffner's 610.

Formco won all three games over Dick McFeely Pontiac with scores of 992, 1038, and 1054, good for 23½ points, which moved them within five and a half points of the leaders.

WEBER'S Bar-B-Que Kettles edged into third place by shooting the night's second best total of 2991. With Joe Simonis firing a league leading 657 and John Surges shooting a consistent 618, Weber's took 19 of 25 points from Oost Produce on games of 951, 1050 and 990. John Karthieser tried hard for Oost, but his 600 wasn't enough to pull any of the games out.

Beverly Lanes found Des Plaines Ace Hardware a very tough host by barely squeaking out a 13-12 margin. In the first game Ace almost overcame an 80-pin deficit, only to lose by 14 pins.

Des Plaines Ace evened things up in the second game, only to be edged in the last game 952-937. Ace Hardware won the series point by 16 pins. Ken Miller was the leader in this match with 627.

In another close encounter, Uncle Andy's Cow Palace, after losing two close games to Mr. Norm's Grand Spaulding Dodge, came back to win big the last game 1016 to 899 despite Rey Ischer's 236, which enabled him to reach the 600 level by one pin. The towering last game enabled Uncle Andy's to win the series point for a 13-12 point victory. Mike Coleantonio's 223, 200, 212 for 635 provided the edge for his teammates.

ACTION MOVES to Hoffman Lanes Saturday with the following important schedule: Beverly Lanes vs. Weber's Kettles, Oost Produce vs. Des Plaines Ace Hardware, Dick McFeely Pontiac vs. Grand Spaulding Dodge and Formco Metal Products vs. Uncle Andy's Cow Palace.

Standings:

Beverly Lanes 199, Formco Metal Products 193.5, Weber's Kettles 172.5, Grand Spaulding Dodge 171.5, Uncle Andy's 159.5, Des Plaines Ace Hardware 149.5, Oost Produce 135.5, Dick McFeely Pontiac 119.

Paddock tourney slated

ELIGIBILITY DATES FOR PADDOCK BOWLING EVENTS

Eligibility dates for the approaching Paddock bowling tourneys are at hand with first teams as of those dates eligible for the big events in January.

In the event of ties, it is up to the league offiicials to decide upon a playoff or other method of determining exactly which team is eligible to represent the league.

In a few rare cases, when the first-place team is unable to participate, the second-place squad is asked to compete. Tourney promoters are interested in having one team from each league in the area served by Paddock Publications, hopefully the first place squad as of the proper eligibility date.

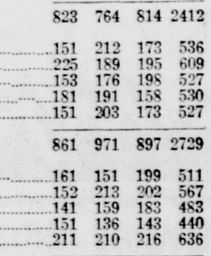

MEN'S EVENT at Beverly Lanes, Jan. 16 will include first place teams of all men's leagues as of Dec. 4. League secretaries are urged to schedule time reservations at 394-2300 as soon as possible with entry deadline Jan. 1.

First place teams of all women's leagues as of Dec. 18 will be eligible for the Jan. 23 tourney, at Thunderbird Bowl with Jan. 18 the deadline for entries.

Leading squads of all mixed leagues as of Dec. 18 are eligible for the Champagne Tournament at Thunderbird Bowl with deadlines for entries Jan. 8. Each participant will receive a split of champagne from Armanetti's Wine Cellar in Rolling Meadows.

Total of $3,731 is expected to be awarded in the three tournaments in event 96 teams compete in the men's event, 96 squads in the women's meet and 64 teams in the mixed.

HI-FI LOW DOWN

by Ed Landwehr

The proof of the pudding is in the eating; the value of the Hi-Fi is in the listening. You do not need to be an electronic expert to decide on the kind of high-fidelity equipment to buy.

We have records at LANDWEHR'S TV & APPLIANCES that cover a full frequency range or better yet, bring your own favorite records over to 1000 W. Northwest Hwy., Arlington Heights and play the various pieces of hi-fi equipment that suit your budget and style. This way you can compare clarity of production in low and high volume and over-all naturalness.

If you ask your neighbor about us, you will find out that we specialize in all kinds of electronics, service and sales. Phone 255-0700 anytime, we would like to be of service to you.

The athletes are superior down under, even the nags

Jim Murray

One of the things which has never ceased to amaze me is the cornucopia of great athletes who regularly come out of Australia and New Zealand. I mean, are we living on the wrong side of the equator? Is it better for the body for Christmas to be in summer? Is it the water? The diet? Is the sun nearer, or the winds bracier, or the land richer? It happens too often to be coincidence.

Comedians come out of the Lower East Side of New York and athletes come out of Australia and New Zealand. Whatever sport they turn their hand to, they swiftly excel. You want golf? Match any other bunch with Bruce Crampton, Bruce Devlin, Peter Thomson, Bob Charles, David Graham, John Lister — tournament winners all.

BEAR IN MIND we are talking about a commonwealth of no more than 14 million people, less than three-tenths of the world population, a census not nearly that of New York state alone, and only three-fourths of California. And you have to be astounded this area has produced nearly all the top tennis players of the past 30 years — Laver, Newcombe, Rosewall, Hoad, Sedgman, Bromwich, Emerson, Fraser, Stolle, Cooper and Roche.

With a quarter or England's population, Australians regularly beat the British in cricket. They beat everybody in rugby. They have produced great prizefighters, Les Darcy, Dave Shade, Tom Heeney, Lionel Rose. Their Olympic performances are a little short of incredible for such a small community. They have won the mile three out of the last five Olympics. It was an Australian who chased Tommie Smith to a world record in the 200 at Mexico City, beating John Carlos for the silver, in the process. Australian swimmers, men and women, have taken Olympic gold medals by the basket.

And now, it appears the superiority is not only vegetable, mineral, or human, but also animal. Apparently, it's even better to be a horse Down Under.

The latest Australian entry in the racing game is a pacer named Young Quinn.

Young Quinn (he was named after the man who won the international sheep-shearing contest, another sport the Aussies and New Zealanders dominate) was brought to this country by trainer-driver Charles Hunter.

Of course, Phar Lap was phar and away the most famous racehorse ever to come out of the island continent. Those who saw him say Man o' War might have been second choice in the betting if they had hooked up. He won his only race in this hemisphere (Tijuana) by widening lengths, but then suddenly and mysteriously died. Since the boxing champion, Les Darcy, had similarly suddenly died on a tour of the U.S., there are Australians to this day who believe a dastardly plot was involved.

HORSE RACING authorities there believe differently. They blame the abundance of malevolent viruses, germs, diseases, putrefactive air and general unhealthiness of this part of the world north of the equator. A horse returning from the United States to Australia or New Zealand must spend six months in quarantine in England. They want to make sure they keep on turning out champions, not consumptives down there.

The most famous harness horse ever to come out of New Zealand was Cardigan Bay; the first one ever to win $1 million in a career. He also became the first horse ever to make a postage stamp on his own, that is, without a general sitting on him.

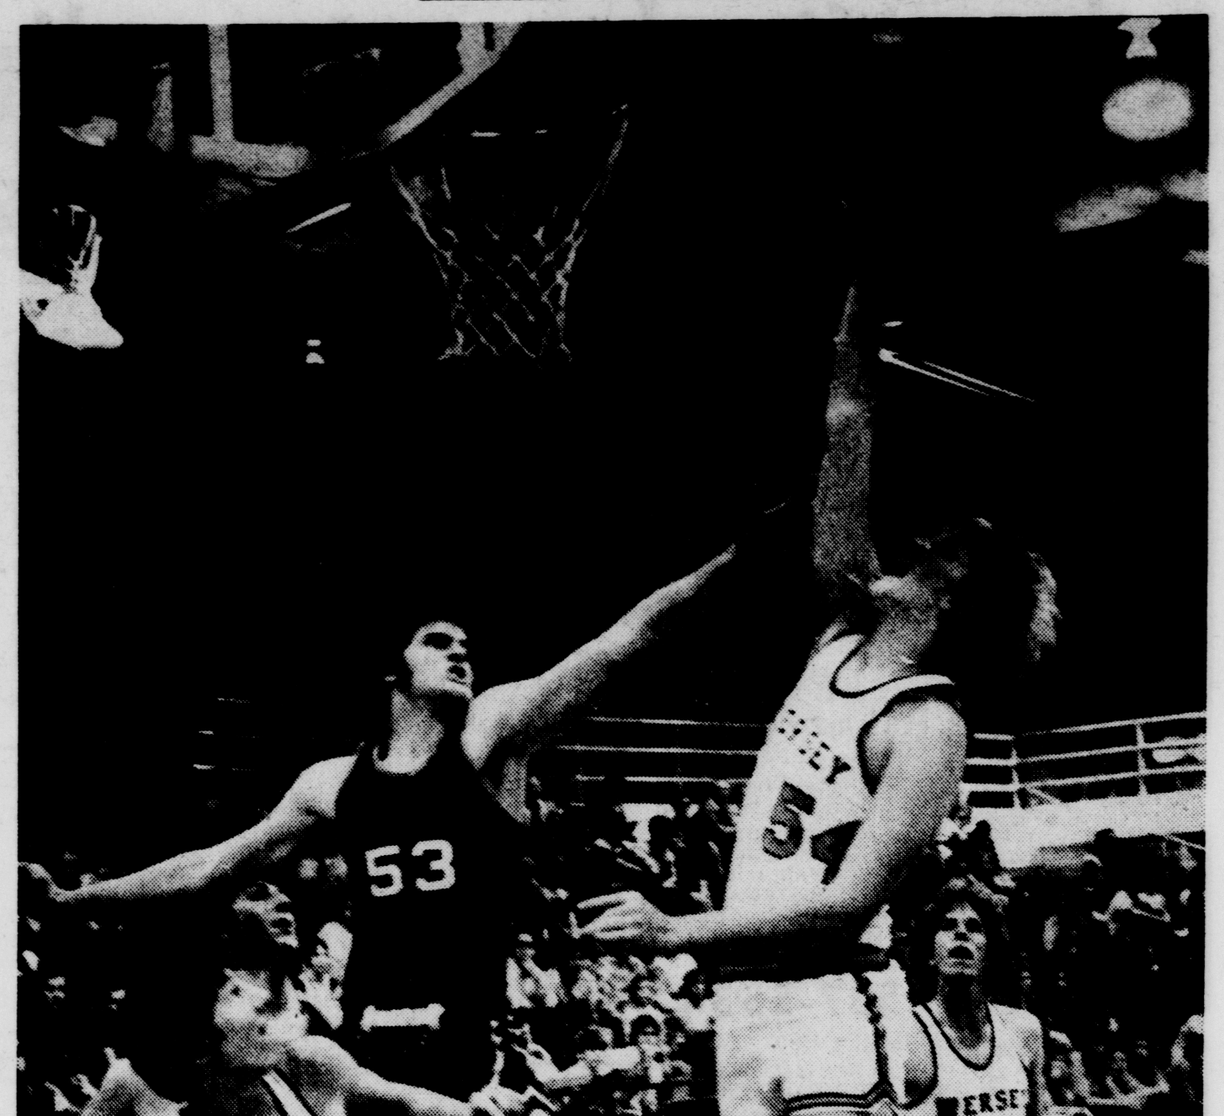

No one knows if they'll make a stamp out of the seven-year-old gelding, Young Quinn, but Hunter knows one thing — he's got more heart than Cardigan Bay.

It's well known that all great distance runners, human and animal, have enlarged hearts, bigger than the rest of the populace. They also beat more slowly.

To this end, Hunter began electrocardiogramming his race horses. Cardigan Bay had a score of 137. Young Quinn scored 140. (Anything above 120 indicates an exceptional runner. Below that, you should hitch him to a real wagon.)

YOUNG QUINN has won $681,465, all but $123,000 of it in America. (There is only a three-day immigration hang-up in bringing horses from New Zealand to America, which should tell you all you need to know about the relative healthiness of the two continents.)

There may be a rush to send horses to breed and be raised in Australia-New Zealand. Maybe people should be on them. Even if you have to wait in a stable in England for six months to be sure you don't break out in a rash when exposed to clean air.

Perfect grid score gives wife win over husband

Marci Hermanson

Finally, after 37 weeks, it happened. Not once, but twice.

In the 38th week of Paddock Publications' Pick the Winners Contest, extending back three years, Marci Hermanson of Mount Prospect recorded the contest's first perfect score.

And, fittingly, she had to defeat her husband in the tiebreaker to win the weekly prize of the stadium blanket and become eligible for the grand prize trip to the Rose Bowl.

The winner of that California trip will be determined at a luncheon to be held Saturday, Dec. 4 at the Howard Johnson's Motor Lodge, on Northwest Hwy., in Palatine.

The West Texas State-Tulsa game was negated by a tie and the Texas-Texas A&M game was played prior to the contest deadline.

Nevertheless, Marci and her husband Clifford battled on equal and perfect footing through the remaining 17 games before Marci won on the tiebreaker.

Marci is a dental hygienist in Des Plaines.

The results of the weeks' card are as follows:

College: USC 17, Notre Dame 13; Georgiu 13, Georgia Tech 10; Cincinnati 20, Louisville 6; Texas Tech 30, Arkansas 7; Alabama 38, Auburn 7; Tennessee 13, Vanderbilt 10; Pittsburgh 24, Penn State 7; Florida 19, Miami (Fla.) 10.

Professional: Houston 20, Atlanta 14; New England 38, Denver 14; Chicago 16, Green Bay 10; Kansas City 23, San Diego 20; Cleveland 17, Miami 13; Washington 24, Philadelphia 0; Pittsburgh 17, Cincinnati 3; New York Giants 28, Seattle 16; Los Angeles 33, New Orleans 14.

Tiebreaker — Navy 38, Army 10.

Mentally handicapped to have special swim

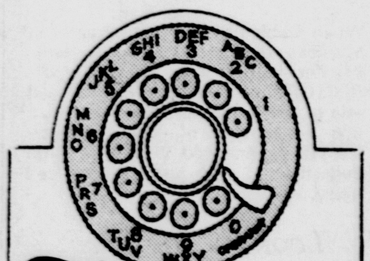

The Chicago Park District will sponsor an invitational swimming meet for mentally handicapped children, teenagers and adults, at 10 a.m., Saturday, Dec. 11, at the Ida Crown Natatorium, Eckhart Park, 1330 W. Chicago Ave.

New this year is the tadpole event in which 5, 6 and 7 year olds will swim the width of the pool. Each child who takes part in the event will receive an award.

Competitors eight years and older will be vying for first- second- and third-place medals in 25-yard butterfly, breaststroke, freestyle and backstroke events, the 50-yard freestyle, 100-yard freestyle relay and novice and advanced one-meter diving.

Swimmers 15 and older who have reached their maximum potential and are still unable to swim 25 yards may enter a special division event.

Ribbons will be presented to all entrants.

The Accepted Influence in the Northwest Suburbs

WASHING THE LEAVES of all her plants is no easy task for Mrs. Alyce Cagann who has over 50 different species of plants on display in her home. Many of them are hung on elaborate macramed plant hangers supplied by Hazel Herter of Arlington Heights.

Does your fern feel faint?

Call for the plant doctor

by GENIE CAMPBELL

Whenever Alyce Cagann makes a house call she takes along a water meter, light meter and a can of bug spray that doubles as a leaf shine. Her patients are house plants.

Though she charges $10 for just showing up at the front door, the money can be applied to $10 worth of healthy, new plants to keep the ailing ones company.

Mrs. Cagann's business cards read Plantique. Starting out by giving plant parties two years ago, she recently began making house calls to treat sick plants because women were always approaching her with nebulous symptoms — "I have this yellow and green plant at home that doesn't look very well. Can you tell me what I'm doing wrong?"

WITHOUT EVEN examining most plants, Mrs. Cagann can guess the problem — over watering. Well-meaning plant lovers too often drown their plants. Sometimes a reduced watering schedule puts a plant on the road to recovery.

Other times Mrs. Cagann will save a plant by repotting it, cutting it back or changing its location in the house.

Like any doc, she can lose a patient. If the roots of a sick plant are orangish in color, its days are numbered. Root rot is incurable.

"Toss it fast and forget it," she wisely tells her customers.

Currently working toward her associate degree in Ornamental Horticulture from McHenry County College in Crystal Lake, Mrs. Cagann also provides a "personal shopping service" to small businesses and individuals who need plant advice in the decorating of their offices or homes or in picking out plants to be given as gifts.

IT DOES make a difference where a plant is going — to someone with a great deal of plant growing experience or to someone with very little, to a corner of a room or by a sunny window — emphasized the Arlington Heights home businesswoman. She will ask questions of her clients and then make recommendations.

In addition, Mrs. Cagann offers a series of three classes to plant novices. The first session is basic plant knowledge — identifying plants and learning how to care for them.

"Some people do not even know which plants they already own," she said.

The second workshop includes propagation and repotting procedures, and the third is geared to the season and interest of the group. Sometimes she might take her students on a field trip to a giant wholesale warehouse of plants, a virtual paradise for the amateur horticulturist.

A FORMER school teacher who quit her job to raise a family, Mrs. Cagann decided two years ago that it was time to reenter the labor market. Her kids are aged 8, 12, 16 and 18.

"But my husband was violently opposed to me going back to work full time. So I looked around for something I could do part time on my own and still remain professional about it," said Mrs. Cagann, pointing out the more unusual plants in the solarium of her home, a room that was to be finished off as a den but suddenly became inundated with plants. There is only enough space for two chairs — right in the center of the room.

Altogether, Mrs. Cagann has over 50 different species of plants because she likes to try growing each plant herself before selling it. That way she is assured her plants are adaptable to a home environment.

ALWAYS ON the lookout for new, unusual plants, Mrs. Cagann found a Rabbit Foot Fern for one customer. It resembles a Boston Fern with hairy-like appendages (rabbit feet) growing out of the soil. She also discovered a Ming Schefflera which is much less susceptible to spider mites and much shorter, too, than its fast-growing, tall counterpart.

More plants are available all the time because people are learning more about plants and are interested in graduating from the easy-to-grow ones like Swedish Ivy, Wandering Jew and Grape Ivy to the more unusual, said Mrs. Cagann.

People are much more willing to spend more money on a plant, too, if they have past growing experience and are confident they can keep it alive.

"House plants aren't a fad," continued Mrs. Cagann because today they add so much in home decorating.

IN HER rounds she is continually coming across growing tips, most of them suggested by customers. However, she endorses none of them.

For instance, some women swear their plants "grow prolifically" when they feed them birth control pills. Others use beer or mayonnaise (very damaging to a plant) to shine the leaves. Others fertilize the soil burying rusty nails in it.

What Mrs. Cagann does recommend is buying a good plant book, inspecting plants regularly for growth irregularities and bugs, and keeping leaves clean by gently wiping them with a light, sudsy detergent. And in very cold weather keep plants away from drafts.

But if your plant should yellow and wither anyhow — call a doctor.

IT TOOK A long time to find one because most greenhouses don't carry them, but Mrs. Cagann finally located a Rabbit's Foot Fern for one of her customers. Naturally it gets its name from the animal-like appendages that hang over the sides of the pot.

MANY PEOPLE don't know what to do with a Schefflera (Umbrella Tree) when it gets too big for a table decoration. That's why the Ming Schefflera is nice. It's a dwarf and does not grow much taller than the one pictured here.

Wife questions the advantages of joint tenancy, land trust

Women and children first

by Julie Martoccio

Dear Atty. Martoccio,

Would you please answer the following questions?

1. When stocks and bonds are in the husband's name only, when or if he dies, would the wife inherit them?

2. Our houses are in joint tenancy and my husband wants to put them in a trust. Is it more advantageous to put them in a trust than to keep them in a joint tenancy? No Names Please

Dear reader,

1. Stocks and bonds in your husband's name only would go into his estate when he dies. In Illinois, without a will, his assets would be distributed according to the laws of intestacy. This means that if there are no children you would receive everything. If there are children (and no will) the children would receive 2/3 and you would receive 1/3.

SHOULD YOUR HUSBAND have a will and not leave anything in it for you or if he should have a will and leave you less than the laws of intestacy provide, you have the right to renounce the will and receive 1/2 of his estate, if no children, or 1/3 if there are children.

2. Both joint tenancy and a land trust bypasses probate (but not taxes). The Illinois Land Trust is a unique form of holding real estate. The title is held by a trustee but all of the rights, use and enjoyment of the property belongs to the beneficiary. (In this instance, you). Even though the legal title is given to the trustee, the latter can act only if and when the beneficiary (you) says the trustee may do so. The trustee can perform such acts as holding title to pieces of real estate, and making mortgages, notes, leases, assignments of rents, etc.

Some of the benefits are that the owner's identity remains unknown because the title needn't be of public record. The real estate is protected (somewhat) from judgments and liens against the beneficiary.

The disadvantages may be the annual fee that is charged and the fact that there is no homestead right while the property is in a land trust.

What you choose would have to be decided between you, your husband and your lawyer. Trusts are complicated legal devices that cannot be explained in a column. I hope, however, that this information will give you some idea of what a land trust entails when or if you go ahead with one.

Dear Ms. Martoccio,

Bravo for the lady who wanted to keep her own bank account! I only wish I had. I remarried after a bad first marriage, bills and two children to support, and I made the mistake of marrying a man with three children and am now on the verge of another divorce. I hate the thought of doing it but he is impossible. When he needed financial help I sold my house and gave him the money. Now I am in a financial bind because he's mean and selfish and it will take a court battle to get back what is mine . . . if there is anything left!

Please keep stressing the point that a woman should think about her own financial needs first! Sally.

(Readers are invited to submit questions regarding problems of women and children. Names and facts that would identify the writer are withheld on request. Attorney Martoccio's law information is to inform and not advise. Write to her in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.)

The doctor says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Drainage from boils highly contagious

Tell me what you can about boils. For a 15-month period I had a boil about every three weeks, then they stopped for a period of nine months. This past week I have had another boil. What causes them and can one person contract them from another?

A boil or abscess of the skin is usually an infection with staphylococcal germs. A small one, often involving a hair follicle, is called a furuncle. A large one — usually a collection of smaller furuncles — is called a carbuncle. A carbuncle usually forms where the skin is thick, as over the back of the neck.

Note the difference between a furuncle (boil) and acne. Ordinary acne is caused by a breakdown of the fatty material secreted by your sebaceous glands and is not an infection. The inflammation is caused by irritation by the broken down fatty material. A furuncle is an infection which may complicate a localized outbreak of acne or it may occur by direct infection of a hair follicle.

A furuncle usually causes swelling and thinning of the skin over the infection. Finally it breaks and drains. Pain is often present until the rupture, then the pain is often relieved. The dead tissue in the center of the furuncle is what some people call a core. More than one may be extruded.

The material that drains out of the furuncle or abscess should be considered highly contagious. While we all have normal staphylococcal germs on our skin, these are usually "friendlies" while the ones that cause furuncles definitely are not. In fact, one approach to treatment of chronic cases is to inoculate the nasal area and skin with friendly staphylococcal germs. They prevent the development of the unfriendlies.

There are differences of opinion in how to treat furuncles. If the location permits it, incision and drainage speed healing. Let the doctor do it. In many instances he may want to give antibiotics to speed healing. Putting antibiotics directly on the furuncle is of no value whatsoever. Hot compresses are commonly used after incision and drainage. Remember the material is contagious. A more extensive incision may be necessary for carbuncles. Some of these may get as large as lemons.

WHEN A PERSON has multiple furuncles or repeated attacks of them, some doctors believe in culturing the furuncles and identifying what antibiotic works best to eradicate the germs causing the problem. The next step is to give the individual and all close contacts the treatment at the same time with the full dosage of the medicine used for at least a month.

The fingernails should be scrubbed with an antibacterial cleanser at least twice a day. An iodophor ointment may be applied to the nose and throat area and the pubic area. The whole idea is to eliminate the offending bacteria that have set up housekeeping. Never exchange towels. Try to isolate the infection.

Treatment of the entire household is usually necessary. Individuals with recurrent furuncles should also be examined for any underlying disorder, specifically diabetes.

Although furuncles are not acne, you may want to understand that problem, too, so I am sending you The Health Letter number 8-2, Acne Can Be Treated. Others who want this information can send 50 cents for it with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope. Just send your letter to me in care of Paddock Publications, P.O. Box 326, San Antonio, Tex. 78292.

Jam Bar one of best for finger desserts

Dear Dorothy: A close friend and I are planning a holiday party together, and we've been planning the various kinds of desserts that can be eaten in the hand. She seems sure you have something special — a cookie with jam and nuts on top. Do you?—Vicky Goodson

Your friend probably is thinking of a jam bar — one of the best finger desserts I know. Cream one-half pound of margarine with three-fourths cup of sugar. Then add three egg yolks, one teaspoon of vanilla and three cups of flour mixed with one-half teaspoon of baking powder. Mix this together well, then pat dough lightly in a 10 x 12-inch pan. Spoon over the dough a small jar of strawberry preserves and dust on a little flour or fine bread crumbs. Cover that with one-half cup of chopped pecans and over this put the three egg whites beaten stiff. Over this sprinkle on another half-cup of the chopped nuts. Bake for one hour in a slow oven (about 325 degrees). After it's cool, cut the bars in any size you wish. You're going to be happy with this one.

Dear Dorothy: We're getting a new dining room table. Will it be all right to use a vinyl cloth to protect it until I can get regular table pads the precise size we need?—Mrs. R.B. Heffner

Absolutely not. Depending on certain conditions, vinyls or plastics can do considerable damage to wood. Until you get table pads, use a flannel-backed cloth — and be sure to use good hot pads for any hot dishes you place on the table.

Dear Dorothy: People keep asking you about perspiration odor. My way of doing shirts prevents the worry. I first rub soap and baking soda on the areas under the arms, then launder by hand. Never an odor.—Bertha Yyson

Weddings

June Piepenbrink—Joseph E. Hercog

It was a happy move for June Piepenbrink when she was transferred from the Rolling Meadows Theater to the 53 Outdoor Drive-In, for it was there she met her future husband, Joseph E. Hercog.

They were married Nov. 13 at 4 p.m. at St. Peter Lutheran Church, Arlington Heights. June is the daughter of the Arnold Piepenbrinks, Rolling Meadows; Joe the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward S. Hercog, Lake Zurich.

The bride wore a white velvet gown with maribou trim. Her long white veil was held by a matching headpiece. Her sister, Janet Swanson, Lake Zurich, served as matron of honor, and bridesmaids were her cousins, Jeannie Hoogerhyde and Debbie Piepenbrink, both of Mount Prospect, and Roberta Killhoff of Schiller Park. Another sister, Esther, and Linda Chase of Rolling Meadows were junior bridesmaids.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Hercog

THE GIRLS all wore mint green polyester knit gowns with forest green velvet trim. Their flowers were in shades of yellow, bronze and gold, except for the junior bridesmaids who carried yellow, pink and wine-tipped carnations.

Gerald Swanson, Lake Zurich, was best man. Others in the groom's party were Dale Hoogerhyde; the bride's two brothers, Edward and Wayne; and Bill Pichler and Russel Cardnel, both of Lake Zurich.

A reception was held at Camelot Restaurant, with 200 guests attending.

June is a graduate of Rolling Meadows High School and the Arlington Academy of Beauty Culture and works at Autocrafters of Des Plaines. Joe is employed by Nu-Star in Glenview.

IT'S CHRISTMAS EVERYWHERE . . . even in a young girl's bedroom on "An Old-Fashioned Walk" through six Mount Prospect homes, arranged for this Saturday from 1 to 4 p.m. Judy Edgar, seated on the floor of her daughter's bedroom, and Melanie Haugh check the decorations and boutique items featured on the housewalk sponsored by Mount Prospect Junior Woman's Club. Homes on the tour range from traditional to contemporary, each trimmed for the holidays. Handmade ornaments, decorations, candles, stationery and baked goods will be sold at each home. Tickets are $3 in advance or $3.50 at the door. Reservations and information can be obtained from Mrs. Rose Niedert, 253-3116.

Deborah J. Ramser—John E. Kenny

Houston, Tex., is now home for the former Deborah J. Ramser of Buffalo Grove, who married John E. Kenny of that city Nov. 6. Parents of both bride and groom are Palatine residents Dr. and Mrs. William J. Ramser and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas F. Kenny.

The double ring, candlelight ceremony took place at 4:30 p.m. at First United Methodist Church of Palatine. Deborah wore a handmade white jersey gown with lace trim and elbow-length illusion veil. Around her neck was a white filigree mother-of-pearl cross, a gift of her mother. A cascade of white roses, ivy and baby's breath completed her ensemble.

Mr. and Mrs. John E. Kenny

Maid of honor was Linda De Vries of Buffalo Grove who wore a slate blue jersey gown with matching jacket and carried a multi-colored round bouquet of dried flowers and baby's breath.

IDENTICALLY ATTIRED were the bridesmaids, Pam Ramser of Iowa City, the bride's sister, and Mary Florek of Hoffman Estates.

Mike Brown of Chicago, the groom's cousin, was best man, with Chuck Genovese of Palatine and Guy Aiello of Barrington serving as ushers.

A reception for 150 guests followed the ceremony, with dinner and dancing at the Barn of Barrington. For their honeymoon, the newlyweds spent four days in Nassau.

Both Deborah and John are graduates of Palatine High School, Deborah in 1970, John in 1969. In 1976, the bride graduated from Harper College as a registered nurse. John works for Leopold, Price and Rolle in Houston.

Yule trimming can turn home into tinseled trap

Home all prettied up for Christmas? Tree up, lights strung, decorations hanging

Beware lest it turn into a tinseled trap.

With the holiday season comes the urge to decorate. "The do-it-yourselfer comes out in every homeowner," says Hans Grigo, technical adviser to the National Safety Council Home Department.

"Frequently they produce displays with paper or flammable materials that represent a fire hazard," he said.

"WE CERTAINLY are not against home decorating, and it isn't so much carelessness. It is just that thoughtlessness and fire don't mix."

Natural materials, even the traditional boughs of holly, sprays of evergreen and the Christmas tree become almost explosively flammable under household conditions, Grigo said.

A natural tree should be the freshest possible, the Safety Council warns yearly; it should have springy branches and tight, green needles that bend easily and that do not shower down by the dry and prickly handful when the tree is shaken. Needles should stick to the tree, except for a light sprinkling when the tree is bounced up and down, before it is purchased.

Before it is set in place for decorating, the tree should be cut about an inch above the bottom of the trunk. Then it should be kept moist and watered around the base, making sure there is no water to soak through any wiring, of course.

GRIGO SAID the tree should be located away from room exits, heating units, fireplaces, candles, registers, television sets, all of which may serve to dry out a natural tree, making it more likely to burn or become a source of electrical problems.

Lights should be examined each year for signs of loose connections, frayed or worn cords, loose sockets, bad plugs. The council has recommended that people use only those tree lights bearing the Underwriters Laboratories label.

Even artificial trees can represent a fire hazard, and should be certified noninflammable, or fire resistant, Grigo said. If a metal foil tree is used, keep tree lights off of it; there is a danger of shock. Lighting can be furnished by floods or spots playing on the tree but not resting on it.

At one time, the tinsel that brightened many trees and some decorative wreaths and sprays represented a health hazard, in that the tinsel was made with a metallic base, sometimes containing lead. This type has been just about regulated off the market so that most tinsel now is nonmetallic. Of course, a pet may be attracted and acquire an upset stomach.
